bor costs so builders will know what buildings are going to cost them."

Labor Still Suffering.

"It is contended by some that in the readjustment labor should participate by offering its services at a lower wage in order to bring about production; in other words—that labor should suffer with all lines of business. Labor has suffered and is suffering now because wages have not kept pace with the increased cost of living.

"Another question arises. Is a lower wage a desirable thing? Labor is the big factor entering into the cost, and there doesn't appear to be any particular advantage in reducing wages.

"A reduced wage means a lessened purchasing power.

"A full, honest, fair day's work should be furnished by labor. This is being done and will continue so.

"Full Day's Work or Discipline."

"We all know that there have been abuses on the part of tradesmen, manufacturers, and financial people who have taken advantage of conditions. The building trades—the rank and file as well as officers of the organizations—have thrashed out this subject, and it is agreed that any workman who does not do a full, honest day's work will be disciplined by his organization."

Only 40% of Men Employed.

"Prior to the war 80,000 workmen were associated with unions affiliated with the building trades council," President Kearney said after the meeting.

"Now the number has been reduced to 50,000, and only 40 per cent of them are employed."

"A large number have entered other lines of work less dangerous and more remunerative."

"If committees appointed to rectify housing conditions would lay off hanging cranes the building industry would boom and within six or eight months there would be plenty of homes for every one."

"At present people are confused by the reports made by the would-be committees, and refuse to build. Some say they intend to wait until the cost of material is reduced to the level of the Contractor's Standard, an authority on material. It was stated that instead of decreasing the price of material would increase."

"OPEN UP INDUSTRY"

A warning to organized labor to take stock of its policies and practices from a thoroughly American standpoint yesterday was given by Stephen C. Mason, president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Mr. Mason spoke before a meeting of local manufacturers at the Congress hotel.

"The American people are no longer going to accept lip service from those organizations which are leading the nation to the brink of the most serious economic and social crisis in its history," said Mr. Mason.

"Off repeated declarations of Americanism and patriotism and frequent disclaimers of bolshevism are not sufficient to conceal their constant efforts to stimulate unsound and dangerous industrial theories."

Boasts Open Shop Policy.

"The only American standard is the open shop with equal opportunity for all, and special privileges for none."

"Our association has for years stood squarely for the preservation of the open shop, based upon our declaration of labor principles, and will so continue to stand. We have lately organized an open shop committee and department to give this policy energetic support among our members."

Mr. Mason declared the proper solution of the industrial problem is more dependent on the organized effectiveness and influence of the nation's business men than ever before in history.

He added that organized industry must formulate its own program and make its collective voice heard in no uncertain tones or the elements of discontent and destruction would succeed in grafting into our body many dangerous and un-American doctrines."

Opposes Immigration Bar.

Another problem termed by the speaker as of paramount importance was that of immigration. He said bills that have been introduced in congress prohibiting an immigration to the United States bear the earmarks of class legislation which intended to strengthen the hold of organized labor on industry by continuing a shortage of labor as a protection to inflated wages."

"We should not restrict immigration," he said. "The labor organizations are trying to do this. They want to cause a shortage of labor, thereby sending wages sky high once more. And this must not happen."

QUEEN DUMMY I. IS CROWNED

Society women rehearse the coronation that is to be a feature of the Rex ball in the gold room of the Congress on Feb. 8. The identity of the woman who is to enact the role of queen is being jealously guarded, so a dummy had to be used at the rehearsal. The ladies in waiting, left to right, are Miss Edith Cummings, Miss Mary Baker, Mrs. W. E. Clow, Mrs. Charles Lobdell, Mrs. Arthur Cable, and Mrs. William Mitchell.

No Temperament

MRS. SAMUEL T. CHASE refused to allow the queen of the Rex ball to appear at a rehearsal of the ladies of the court yesterday, so Miss Mary Baker sent out to her dressmaker's and borrowed a dummy. The ladies-in-waiting met at the Casino in the afternoon to rehearse their part in the coronation of the queen at the ball, which is to be given in the gold room of the Congress on Tuesday night, Feb. 8.

The queen has been selected by Mrs. Chase, who is the president of the Chicago board of managers of the Rex ball, for whose benefit the event is being given, but the identity of the queen is to remain a terrible secret until 12 o'clock of Feb. 8. The ladies-in-waiting insisted the queen should come to the rehearsal, but Mrs. Chase was afraid some one would recognize her, so the dummy had to be substituted.

The rehearsal proceeded smoothly much more smoothly perhaps than if the real queen had been there, for the dummy didn't talk back or get temperamental or anything.

Miss Baker knelt and presented the dummy queen with the royal crown. Mrs. Arthur Cable and Mrs. William Mitchell held up the queen's ermine robe. Mrs. William E. Clow presented her with the royal scepter. Miss Edith Cummings invested her with the royal chain, and Mrs. Charles Lobdell held the smelling salts in order to revive the dummy queen if she fainted away. It was a most successful coronation.

NEW RENT RAISES ASKED FOR MAY 1 AROUSE TENANTS

Push Plan for Law to Curb Landlords.

The semi-annual conflict between landlords and the Chicago Tenants' Protective league opened yesterday with renewed vigor.

Notices demanding an increased rental for the year beginning May 1 have started to reach the tenants. The latter in turn have begun the organization of the office in the Transportation building with complaints.

Meetings of tenants have been called in all sections of the city. Tonight the Woodlawn branch will meet at Ingleside avenue and Sixty-second street.

$65 Home Jumps at $125.

One complaint yesterday asserted the owner of the building at 1607 Farwell avenue has demanded an increase from $65 to $125 a month. Another declared J. L. Moss, secretary of the Newberry Library association, has raised rents at 1018 North State street from $45.50 to $70 per month.

The tenants' league is planning to lobby for legislation in Springfield to curb exorbitant rent raising. The real estate men's answer is covered in this statement by Adolph F. Kramer of the Chicago Real Estate board.

"If the tenants will help us put an end to this high cost of building we will soon put an end to the high rents," he said.

Defends Increase Asked by Firm.

Complaint was made to the tenants' organization that rents in a building at Ingleside avenue and Fifty-fourth street were being raised from $42.50 to $57.50 if the leases were signed in January, but would be at least 10 per cent higher if signed later.

"The people in that building have been guests of the landlord," Mr. Kramer exclaimed.

L. M. Smith, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, admitted some landlords are demanding excessive increases.

"Could we speak with Miss O'Shea?" she was asked.

"No. My daughter is in no condition to talk. She is conscious only at intervals."

The police had remarked that Miss O'Shea, in choosing Winona street, had gone a block out of her way. Winona is a dimly lighted street with many trees. Argyle, on the other hand, at the corner of which the Somerset is located, is brilliantly lighted until late hours.

"How did Miss O'Shea happen to walk down Winona street?" Mrs. O'Shea was asked.

"Why, the conductor forgot to let her off at Argyle and she was thus carried a block farther north."

"Had she ever seen the woman before?"

"No."

"Is it usual for her to carry $50 in her purse?"

"We frequently carry such sums."

Man in Disguise?

The police say no attempt was made to attack Miss O'Shea. They say the gash on her head was inflicted when she fell. However, there have been reports for some weeks that a moron is operating in the Summerdale district, and they try to learn whether the person described by Miss O'Shea was not a man in woman's disguise. Dr. O'Shea would not discuss the case.

The injunction granted, the association through its president, Dudley Taylor, announced that the civil action will be followed by criminal prosecution of members of the janitors' and allied unions.

"We plan to go before the grand jury and ask that indictments be returned against the labor organizations which have maintained a virtual siege of this apartment building," he said.

HOME SERVANT FAMINE IS FELT IN WASHINGTON

Men Only Available at High Wages.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—(Special.)—Families arriving in Washington with the incoming administration will find themselves confronted with an unprecedented situation as regards domestic service.

No white women are available as servants at any price. There are few colored women, trained or untrained, to be had, and of the few who accept positions, the majority cannot be relied on to remain more than a few weeks.

But, for the first time in the history of the capital, more men are applying for positions as butlers, housemen and even cooks than can be placed, and experienced men, colored or white, can be had by any one who will pay the price.

Altitude Record for Wages.

Colored, colored or white, are listed at from $75 to $125 a month. If men, and between from $50 to $75 a month if women. Housemen rate from $50 a month on up, as against housemaids at from $40 upward, though nursemaids are getting. If they will accept positions, from $50 to $60, and a nursery governess can get as high as $100 a month.

Butlers are rated at $75 a month if white and $50 a month if colored. White chauffeurs must have $100 a month, colored chauffeurs average from $60 to $75, and housemen, colored and white, range from $50 to $60.

Southerners More Lucky.

The northerners arriving in Washington find their lot harder than do the southerners. The southerners, perhaps from a better understanding of the Negro, are more successful in retaining the colored servants. For one thing, the northerners cannot so custom themselves to the southern idea of the servants' right to live at home and "tote home" eatables. The southerners, bringing their own servants, find them contented and pleased with "the big city," but the servant coming from New York or Chicago, for instance, look upon Washington as a "country town" and will not stay.

NEW 'REPUBLIC' IN THE MAKING AT GAS COMPANY

"Bosses" and Aids Draft
Equal Voice Charter.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Chicago's industries, leveraged with a new experience yesterday, a "constitutional convention" of workers and management met to set up a system of democratic government in the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company. The convention was composed of fifty-five delegates elected by Australian ballot by the employees and fifty-five delegates picked by officials of the company, and its purpose was to hammer out a constitution that will give the workers an equal voice with the "bosses" in settling all questions affecting them in their relations with the company. On wages, hours, conditions of employment, and kindred matters it's to be equal suffrage in the gas company, if the program goes through.

So far the employee representation or joint council system, although in vogue in 200 and more manufacturing and mercantile establishments in America, has not made much headway in public utilities, and the gas company, one of the oldest utilities, is lighting the way for the public service industry. Similar steps have been announced for the Commonwealth Edison company.

Like Legislative Session.
The initial session of the "constitutional convention" had points of similarity to the preliminary gatherings of a political or legislative body. The dining room of the Gas building in atmosphere was not unlike the senate and house at Springfield, minus the Spanish athletes. The delegates looked vastly more like a deliberative body than the city council. The clockrooms, in which the delegates over, might have been the antechambers at a state political convention, with the slight difference that one might leave his overcoat on the rack without changing any risk of its walking away.

Bernard J. Mullane, who used to be secretary to the late Mayor Busse, acted as chairman in his best business profusion, and Samuel Insull, president of the company, did the "keynoting." The delegates wanted to show their enthusiasm for woman suffrage by putting in a woman as secretary, just as at the senate at Springfield. But the "caucus" slipped up—the women declined, pulling the good old alibi of "too much other work," so the delegates compromised by putting in a couple of men secretaries.

A rough draft of a platform or constitution had been prepared by an outside bureau of economics. The delegates are to go over it section by section and hammer it out to shape.

"Our purpose is free speech," said Mrs. Mullane. "We want the utmost freedom of discussion, so nobody will go away feeling he has something on his chest he did not have a chance to get off to his chest. Hop to it—there's no limit to revision, amendment or alteration."

"The draft," said Herbert E. Fleming, who did much of the drafting, "is only a target to shoot at."

After the convention finishes its labors, the constitution is to be printed and distributed among the employees, after which it will go to a referendum vote for adoption or rejection. For the present the proposed plan applies only to 2,500 unorganized employees. Later it may be offered to the unionized departments.

Insult Details Plans.
"In some establishments," said Mr. Insull in his "keynote," "employees' representation has been worked out with a scheme of unionization. In others it is a supplement to a plan for open shop. We are not proposing at this time to offer this plan for such department as have their own scheme of representation and apparently are more or less satisfied with it. It will apply at this time to unorganized departments, but we propose leaving the door open so any employees who wish cooperation and sincerity."

The proposed plan, which has been recently described in detail in these columns, sets up a system of joint council with management. In case of a failure to reach a settlement in any controversial matter it goes to compulsory arbitration.

GRANDMAS FLY TO CAPITAL WITH NEBRASKA VOTE

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Two flying grandmothers dropped into Des Moines from the sky today. They are Mrs. W. H. Wheeler, Nebraska presidential elector, and Mrs. Draper Smith, her alternate. They are flying from Lincoln, Neb., to Washington, D. C., with the electoral vote of their state, and completed the flight from Omaha in 1 hour and 40 minutes, arriving here at 4:20 p. m.

A reception committee, including Lieut. Gov. John Hammill, Mrs. Frederick W. Weitz, president of the Des Moines Women's clubs, and members of the city council awaited the flyers. But these were pushed aside as Mrs. Wheeler stepped out of the plane by three little folk who rushed forward shouting "Grandma," and who were gathered into the arms of the flying elector. They were the children of her daughter, a resident of Des Moines.

Mrs. Smith opined she wished some of her grandchildren were on hand to welcome her.

The electors are using two planes in their flight—the first attempt ever made to deliver a state's electoral vote by airplane.

They will remain in Des Moines to night and resume the flight early in the morning. Stops will be made at Iowa City, Davenport, Ia.; Chicago, Cleveland, Brookville, O.; Bellefonte, O., and Harrisburg, Pa.

Mrs. Smith is 66 years old, Mrs. Wheeler is 55.

IRISH ATTACKERS SLAY 7 POLICE IN A SINGLE DAY

British Wield Reprisal

(Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.)
(Copyright: 1921.)

DUBLIN, Jan. 20.—News reaching Dublin this afternoon told of a disastrous ambush of police in County Clare, in which the whole of the patrol appears to have been either killed or wounded.

The police in a car were attacked at Glenwood, near Six Mile bridge. District Inspector Clarke, who was in charge, a sergeant and four constables were killed and a sergeant and a constable were wounded.

The car was burned and the arms of the party were taken. The scene of the attack is in fairly hilly country, with a bog on one side of the road.

Brave Officer Killed.
One of the bravest men in the Royal Irish constabulary was shot dead this afternoon a few yards from the doors of the police barracks, at Listowel, County Kerry. This was District Inspector Thomas O'Sullivan, whose death recalls his gallant defense of the police barracks at Killallock in May last.

Attacked by Republican forces estimated to number between 200 and 300, the siege lasted five hours. By that time the building was blazing and the second floor had collapsed.

O'Sullivan ordered the remnants of his party to fix bayonets and led a last hope charge against the attackers, who promptly fled.

As a result of repeated attacks on government motor cars conveying crown forces and other persons in the city and district, Col. Oldman, the competent military authority here, announced that should these outrages continue "known rebels" will be carried as hostages for the safe conduct of the occupants of such vehicles. This notice, published today, applies to Dublin city and the counties of Dublin and Meath.

Surprise Two Ambushes.
In two instances yesterday the police surprised and dispersed ambushing parties. A reconnoitering patrol of police discovered the roads cut and fifty armed men concealed near Cahira national school on the Kilrush road, County Clare. Fire was opened by the civilians, but they fled before the return of the police, who claim to have wounded four or five of their assailants.

In County Kilkenny police occupying Fiddown barracks observed a party of men preparing an ambush, presumably for the night patrol. An exchange of shots occurred and the attackers withdrew.

NIGHT RAIDS IN LONDON
(Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Armed raids on Irish houses in London were carried out last night in six districts in both the east and west ends of London. No arrests were made, but Scotland Yard has announced the seizure of great quantities of propaganda and other evidence of Sinn Fein activities.

It was officially announced that the raids were brought on by news that the Sinn Fein recently had been advocating outrages in London and other parts of England by civilians.

The raids were carried out with great rapidity and precision. No resistance was met in any quarter, fifty detectives, acting simultaneously, searching houses in Bayswater, Paddington, Eastham, Barnsbury, Stepney, and Hanwell.

DESTROY CORK HOMES.
CORK, Jan. 20.—The first official destruction for attacks on crown forces in Cork city since martial law was enforced in this area was carried out this morning, when two houses in Washington street were destroyed.

The military authorities assert crown forces were fired on Saturday from six houses in Washington street and that "the two worst" were selected for destruction.

At that time, it is expected, papers for her deportation to Canada will have arrived here.

Sane as Any One in Love Can Be.
According to Dr. John Egan, a police surgeon, Miss Herbert is perfectly sane—"that is, if anybody deeply in love can be called sane," he said. "She is simply a determined 'vamp' determined to capture and win this man. It has become an obsession with her."

Zinner, who is about 25 years old, told the magistrate that when conducting a party of tourists on a trip to the Orient on a trans-Pacific liner last March, the woman annoyed him. On his arrival in Japan, he said, he thought he was rid of the ardent wooer, but when Hongkong was reached she bobbed up again. On the return trip to Honolulu, he said, Miss Herbert was a stowaway on his steamship.

Will Get Him Yet.
Last September she arrived here and resumed her wooing, until she was arrested and deported to Canada. Questioned as to how she had returned this country from Canada after being deported, Miss Herbert answered:

"Easy enough. I came by airship. It cost me $100, but it was well worth ten times that price to be near my loved one. I'll get my sweetheart yet."

WOMEN ACT AS GUN CARRIERS FOR IRISHMEN

Handicap British in the Martial Law Area.

CORK, Jan. 20.—[By the Associated Press.]—In the first formal interview given to the press since he came to Ireland, Maj. Gen. Strickland, in command of the troops, told the Associated Press today that martial law was proving a success. He discussed the reprisals and his letter to the acting lord mayor explaining that he expected aid from the citizens in the shape of a vigilance committee of some kind to supply information to the military. He did not allude to his report on the burning of Cork.

Among the interesting statements made by Gen. Strickland was one that women carried weapons concealed in their skirts to the ambushing forces. "Sees No Immediate Results."

He declared he did not expect immediate results from martial law, but even before it was imposed the Sinn Feiners were finding it impossible to live at home and had begun to form flying columns in the Macroom district and parts of Tipperary and Kilkenny.

"The first result of martial law was to make these columns more active," he said. "The definite thing we are accomplishing is the breaking of the organization of the republican army. Until martial law was declared that organization was remarkably efficient, its formations were almost as well organized as those of the British army."

"It might be taken as too optimistic to say that the present operations of the republican army are its dying kick; but I believe that to be a fact. How long it can keep going is a matter of conjecture. But it is only a question of time."

Few Arms Surrendered.
In reply to a question as to what results had been obtained up to the present by the proclamations demanding the surrender of arms Gen. Strickland admitted it probably was true that the number of arms personally surrendered could be counted on the fingers of one hand, but added:

"In any way or another arms are coming in."

Gen. Strickland spoke bitterly of the part he alleged women were taking as arms bearers.

"The military are not making war on women or interfering with them in any way," he said, "so the difficulty of getting the arms in the possession of the women may be imagined."

POLICE BULLETS BRING DOWN TWO;
HOLDUP HALTED

William O'Donnell, 2002 West Monroe street, was probably fatally wounded by Police Constable Leo Hartcraft after he is alleged to have held up the restaurant of George Condos at 2103 West Madison street. Hartcraft was searching for the robber when he saw O'Donnell flee down an alley. A bullet struck the fugitive in the neck.

John Kalyach, 1826 South Robey street, was wounded by detectives from the Maxwell street station, who surprised him and four companions in the act of robbing Ignatz Ulan at Throop and Eighteenth streets. Two of Kalyach's companions were captured and two escaped.

James McCarthy, who was shot Tuesday by Patrolman John P. Horan following a holdup of the Wilson restaurant, 649 West Madison street, died yesterday. Patrolman Horan says McCarthy was running away from him when he fired.

ITALY'S INDUSTRY ON VERGE OF ITS DARKEST HOURS

Employment Shrinks as Production Falls.

BY JOHN CLAYTON.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.)

MILAN, Jan. 20.—Italian industry faces the most critical period in its history.

The workmen are discontented, the furnaces practically idle, and the metallurgical plants in a constant state of unrest as a result of a long series of strikes and political agitation.

The total production of Italy's industries in 1919 has fallen far below the 1918 level.

The slump has already hit the steel and iron mills and sent them staggering, but it will not be fully felt in the mechanical division of the metallurgical industry until February or March.

Cotton Industry Strong.

Only one Italian industry—spinning and weaving cotton—has been able to maintain something like its pre-war output. Three things are responsible for this. First, practically all european markets buy cotton in the same markets and pay the same price for it. Second, practically all Italy's cotton spinning is done by electric power.

Third, the cotton industry has been practically free from strikes.

Adoption of the eight hour day has reduced somewhat the efficiency of the looms, but on the other hand it has increased that of the spindles, for they now work two eight hour shifts instead of one twelve hour period.

Except in this one division of industry, that now employs 200,000 men and women, there does not seem to be a rift in the industrial storm clouds. Unemployment, which has been serious during the emigration of 600,000 during the year, is increasing rapidly.

300,000 Seek Work.

Whereas on June 1, 200,000 sought employment, estimates made after careful study of conditions in various fields of Italy point to more than 300,000 without work at present, with the total mounting.

There are two fundamental causes for industrial decline in the nation. First, the high cost of coal, with the inability of certain industries to pay for it and compete successfully with English and French manufacturers.

Second, and far more important, is unrest among the workers. Up to the 1st of August, 1920, the mechanical plants had been able to keep all their skilled workers and many of their wartime mechanics at the lathes. Then came the first indication of trouble, which turned out to be purely of political nature. The agitation among the workers was not merely for higher wages but was an attempt on the part of radical leaders to throw the country into a revolution.

Strikes Take Heavy Toll.

The metallurgical strike, around which Red agitation centered, was the culmination of a long series of strikes which cut deeply into Italian industry and commerce throughout the year.

Since the settlement of this difficulty on the 1st of October there has been a general reduction of the staffs in the metal factories. The Ilva corporation, that great furnace which produces 75 per cent of the iron and 50 per cent of the steel in Italy, has almost ceased operations.

Its pig iron furnaces, which in 1914 produced 35,000 tons monthly, are closed entirely. The metals department, with a former monthly average of 40,000 tons, is operating on a 25 per cent basis, while its steel crucibles, which in 1914 produced 35,000 tons, now

PRESIDENT ELECT HARDING AS HE APPEARS TODAY

BY WALTER DILL SCOTT.
(President of Northwestern University.)

On the Train Coming Back from Marion, Jan. 20.—President Elect Harding has recently been reported to have become nervously exhausted and irritable, but I found an optimistic, vigorous man in Mr. Harding when he assumed the part of a newspaper editor and a champion of ethical and religious leadership. He knew that I sought no political position and had no advice to give. He knew that I sought his advice and assistance on education in journalism. To such an appeal he responded in the neighborly way that has so universally characterized his actions and endeared him to the American people.

His handshake is still firm, his voice resonant, and his eye clear. He enters into a discussion with youthful enthusiasm and relates with evident satisfaction personal reminiscences bearing on the matter in hand. As he sits leaning back in his desk chair he appears as one at leisure and without a care. At the conclusion of our conference he stood erect, no stoop in his shoulders, an expression of animation in his face, and with firmness and alacrity in his step.

Mr. Harding as president elect, when surrounded by reporters and politicians, is quite unlike Mr. Harding the editor and educator. For months he has been hounded by reporters seeking a sensational story and by politicians seeking favors or giving advice as to how to run the government. It is not strange that his delicate sensibilities have become sensitive. Every approach of a reporter or a politician has become to him like a blow to an open wound. His whole being assumes an attitude of defense. The lines of his face become drawn, his hands are seen to twitch, and he looks and acts like a man prematurely old. Mr. Harding is, by nature, frank and sympathetic. Hence it has been particularly difficult for him to meet the impossible demands of the reporters and politicians.

Fortunately his sturdy constitution has not broken and it is reasonably certain that the irritability and the sensitiveness of his nervous system will disappear before he emerges from the seclusion of the Indian river region.

I was so fascinated by his reminiscences and by his enthusiasm for the cause of journalism that I failed to make adequate mental notes of all that Mr. Harding said, but the following are some of his sentences that found place in my memory:

"The American press has not lived up to its responsibilities in molding the thought of the people. It has limited itself too much to dispensing sensational news and to making money. It has been influenced more by commercial than by ethical standards. It is very important that all available agencies should combine to elevate not only the ideals but also the practices of the American press."

"I am much pleased with the plan of putting out even a smaller percentage."

The silk industry, which before the war formed Italy's chief export product, has undergone a 55 per cent cut in production from that of 1914, and it can be laid directly to strikes. During the most critical period of the season the laborers, whose duty it was to see that the worms were fed, walked out and half the crop was destroyed.

Italy's chief industries are the metallurgical and textile. The spinning and weaving mills in 1913, when the last industrial census was taken, showed that 325,000 people were employed. This rose to close to 600,000 during the war.

The metallurgical plants, including the shipyards, employed 387,000 in 1913. During the war the total reached 600,941. The building trades employed 120,000.

During the month of December the number employed in the metal trades will fall below the 1913 census for the first time. The cotton mills, which in 1913 employed 122,000, now boast 200,000, the increase being due to the eight hour day. The silk mills in 1913 employed 137,000; today they employ 140,000.

No accurate figures as to the output of the mechanical industry have been published. However, a close check is made possible from statistics on the production of steel, iron, and pig iron. Based upon these statistics the opinion is reached that the 1920 figures will scarcely reach half those of 1913.

Iron mining has decreased from 900,000 tons in 1916 to 300,000 tons in 1920. The sulphur output was reduced from 400,000 tons in 1913 to 250,000 tons.

Building trades operations are practically at a standstill, owing to the impossibility of getting materials.

What President Scott does not tell in the foregoing is that he was the only visitor at the Harding home in Mt. Vernon street yesterday morning with which the president elect would confer. After his conversation with the head of Northwestern he left the house. On his way out he was confronted with a newly arrived delegation of "best minds," but, waving his hand to them and calling out, "I'm sorry, men," he hurried to his auto.

ALLIES DIFFER ONLY ON MINOR TREATY POINTS

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)
(Copyright: 1921: By The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, Jan. 20.—In a frank discussion of matters which will come up before the supreme council at Paris Monday, a high official of the British foreign office declared today that Mr. Lloyd George was going to Paris with an open mind, ready to consider any plans which the French may present for the enforcement of the treaty terms.

"There is no fundamental difference between the British and the French governments over German relations," he said. "Both England and France are determined that Germany shall live up to the terms of the treaty of Versailles. All talk of its revision is mere speculation."

"However, there is a difference of opinion in regard to the time when Germany must fulfill all the obligations of the treaty."

Questions to Come Up.
"What questions will be discussed?" he was asked.

"Disarmament and reparations regarding Germany, the situation in east Austria, and probably Russia as affected by German disarmament."

"England is well satisfied with the progress Germany is making in carrying out the Spa agreement in so far as it affects the disarmament of the regular army. While this is not entirely complete, we appreciate the difficulties that have had to be overcome. Regarding the disarmament of militia and irregular troops there is disagreement."

Dangers in Germany.
"Any one who knows conditions in Germany today cannot contemptuously dismiss problems which demand immediate action. There are two dangers which Germany faces and which it must be left some means of controlling. First, there is the danger of a communist revolt, and second, the danger of a Russian bolshevik offensive, which might sweep the country if Germany is unprepared to meet the Red armies."

"France wants Germany to live up to the letter of the treaty clauses regarding disarmament. England doesn't want to take any action which it might later regret. We have had Marshal Foch's report on German disarmament. It has been carefully considered at two cabinet meetings."

PROGRAM OF BRIAND.
PARIS, Jan. 20.—[By the Associated Press.]—Premier Aristide Briand presented the program of his ministry to the chamber of deputies and the senate today. The program contains four outstanding points, namely:

Germany must disarm and pay the reparations due from her.

France has the force to compel respect for engagements taken with her and would be able to use it if necessary, but it is in peace she wishes to bring Germany to fulfill her obligations.

Peace with Turkey must be made effective, account being taken of new circumstances.

France will not intervene in the internal affairs of Russia, but cannot submit to the soviet armies crossing the Russian frontiers to attack the allies of France.

Economy Is Promised.
Promises of economy, renovation of the financial administration and intensified reconstruction of the devastated regions made up the remainder of the program which, judged by the applause satisfied the great majority of the members of parliament.

Germany must fulfill all the obligations of the treaty.

SENATE INQUIRY OF JAPS' PACIFIC CONTROL BEGUN

Even Yap, Wilson's Prize, in Mikado's Grip.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—(Special.)—The clash between the interests of the United States and Japan in the Pacific ocean has reached such a pass that the senate committee on foreign relations decided today to take a hand in the matter.

As the first step, the committee will seek the details of the agreements entered into at Paris respecting the disposition of the former German cables in the Pacific, the cable station island of Yap and the other former German islands north of the equator over which Japan has been given a league of nations mandate.

The inquiry is likely also to go into the question of Shantung, which Japan so far has failed to restore to China, and the occupation of Vladivostok and other parts of Manchuria by the Japanese.

Conference Secrets to Be Barred.
Senator Lodge, chairman of the committee, had a conference this afternoon with Acting Secretary of State Davis, who, it was stated, will appear before the committee next Tuesday to furnish Paris peace conference documents and such information as the senators desire.

It is understood President Wilson has been advised of the purpose of the inquiry and has consented to the disclosure to the committee of the peace conference secrets bearing on the situation.

Whether the committee will be able to obtain the navy general board's recommendations to Mr. Wilson warning him of the strategic mistake of allowing Japan to get possession of the German islands in the north Pacific, enveloping Guam and screening the Philippines, remains to be seen.

This is a carefully guarded report, which the president ignored in consenting to the award of the mandate for these islands to Japan and on which the committee failed to get any light when it interviewed the president at the White House in August, 1919.

All Mr. Wilson would say on that occasion was that he had made a reservation in regard to Yap and had obtained an oral agreement that this cable and radio center should be disposed of by the communications conference which now is endeavoring to settle the controversy over possession of the former German cables in the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Japan has adopted a stubborn attitude in the communications conference and in negotiations abroad relating to her interests in the Pacific. She never has accepted the form of mandate over the islands offered by the allies and is holding out for a mandate which virtually would allow her to incorporate the Marshall, Ladrone, and Caroline archipelagos into the Japanese empire.

Yap Key to U. S. Control.
If Japan obtains such a mandate she would have complete control of Yap and be able to dictate to the United States in regard to all cable and radio activities centering on that island. Yap is an important alternate line of cable communication between the United States and the Philippines, this line being always free of interruption, while the Guam line is frequently out of commission as the result of tropical storms.

Aside from the strategic conditions involved, Japan appears to be endeavoring to achieve cable domination in the far east to the exclusion of the United States.

Oregon Hits at Japs.
Salem, Ore., Jan. 20.—A stringent anti-Japan bill, modeled after the California law, was introduced in the legislature today. The bill was examined by Attorney General Van Winkle, who decided that its provisions were fully within the constitutional powers of the legislature. The bill prohibits any alien not eligible to citizenship from owning real property in the state.

Langdon Funeral Held.
Vladivostok, Jan. 18.—A military funeral for Lieut. Warren H. Langdon, United States navy, was held today at the Y. M. C. A. building, close to the dock where the United States cruiser Albany, of which he was the chief engineer, is moored. Gen. O. I. the Japanese military commander, was present.

SCHWAB CALLED IN SHIPBUILDING FUNDS INQUIRY

May Explain $260,000 Voucher.

New York, Jan. 20.—(Special.)—Charles M. Schwab was subpoenaed tonight to appear before the congressional committee on United States shipping board operations early next week.

The decision to call Mr. Schwab followed the testimony of Col. Eugene H. Abadie, formerly general controller of the shipping board, who swore that Mr. Schwab's personal expenses, amounting to $260,000 for the month of October, 1918, were charged to the shipping board, and that $100,000 of this amount was charged to ship construction by the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation.

Col. Abadie said this was one of "a great many serious irregularities" committed at because of Mr. Schwab's official position as director general of the Emergency Fleet corporation.

Thinks Schwab Himself Innocent.
The witness said, however, he was satisfied that Mr. Schwab "was ignorant of these alleged irregularities" and would have condemned them had he known the facts.

The alleged irregularities, according to the witness, were brought to light by an audit of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company's books begun at his direction by Perley Morse & Co., certified public accountants. This audit, Col. Abadie asserted, created so much talk in shipping board circles that it subsequently was discontinued.

As he believed, largely through the instrumentality of Martin J. Gillen, formerly special assistant to Chairman John Barton Payne and Admiral H. S. Benson, Payne's successor.

Meanwhile, he said, Bernard H. Baruch told Gillen that the reputation of the shipping board administration was jeopardized by its action in calling the auditors off the Bethlehem Shipbuilding company's books and eventually orders were given for the resumption of the audit in a somewhat modified form.

$100,000 Probe Stopped?
Col. Abadie said he was of the opinion that the government would have a basis for the recovery of $100,000,000 improperly paid to shipbuilders by the shipping board if the audit were permitted to proceed along the lines specified in his original contract with the certified public accountants.

Col. Abadie was asked where he had learned of the existence of the $260,000 voucher. He said he got his information from Perley Morse.

"For what officer?" asked Chairman Walsh.
"Mr. Schwab," replied the witness. "Was the voucher drawn to Mr. Schwab individually, do you recall?"

"Yes, sir," replied Col. Abadie.
"Was it a voucher drawn to Mr. Schwab as an officer of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding corporation," asked the chairman.

"Yes, as I recall it," replied the witness.
Chairman Walsh inquired if emergencies might not have arisen which justified the expenditure of such a sum.

"If so," said Col. Abadie, "they should have been paid directly by the Emergency Fleet corporation and not charged up to ship construction."
Chairman Walsh then wanted to know if the item might not have represented the payment of bonuses for early deliveries. The witness would not acquiesce in this suggestion.

The disclosures were made by Col. Abadie in explaining his resignation, which, he said, was due to a frustration.

Face Hard Task

Managers of the Fashion Show and Merchants' Fair, which is to be held in the 1st infantry armory Feb. 5 to 19, faced one of the hardest tasks they ever encountered yesterday when they were confronted with a battalion of beauty. They had advertised for 150 of the prettiest girls in Chicago to act as models to display Chicago fashions at the show.

Yesterday was the day set for the selection of the models, and at noon the beauties began to assemble on the thirteenth floor of the Garrick building at 64 West Randolph street. Although those who made the selection of the successful candidates were experienced in picking choruses, they found that their work was harder than they had anticipated. Finally seventy young women were selected and the managers called it a day's work. The other recruits for the battalion of beauty will be selected later.

CHIEF AND LYLE CLASH AT TRIAL OF CAPT. RYAN

A lively tilt between Chief of Police Fitzmorris and Ald. John H. Lyle yesterday marked the afternoon session of the civil service hearing of charges of incompetency, neglect and making a false report against Capt. John J. Ryan of the Englewood station.

ALD. JOHN H. LYLE. (TRIBUNE Photo.)

The alderman had been called as a character witness by Capt. Ryan. "You are making the mistake of your life, Mr. Fitzmorris, in bringing this man here," said the alderman, as he was about to leave the witness stand.

Chief Tells Charges.
"Just a moment," interposed Chief Fitzmorris. "Suppose that two policemen were arrested by another policeman, taken to the station, in a condition making it necessary for the commanding officer to take their guns away from them and to place them in cells. And that those two policemen had earlier in the evening taken a citizen, beaten him up, taken him to the station and locked him up until they were ready to turn him out through connivance with the lockup keeper.

"And suppose that every possible effort had been made to shield those two men even to the extent of Capt. Ryan writing to me saying they were good men. Would you still state that I was making a mistake in an effort to correct that evil?"

Told Different Story.
"If the case is just as you state it, I'll agree with you," said Lyle. "But the two gentlemen came to me and wanted me to be their attorney and told me a different story."

"And if Capt. Ryan had information that the facts were as I have said and he withheld the information from me, would you still say I was making a mistake?" inquired the chief.

"Well, I can't believe that—hearing those two men's story," answered the alderman.

Lyle then entered into a laudatory statement of Capt. Ryan's good qualities.

"You are in politics, of course?"

"Yes," said Lyle.

"And you are going to be a candidate next spring?" he continued.

"I'm not going to run," answered Lyle. "My term expires in 1922, and, according to 1922, so I will be out of politics."

"We will miss you," commented the chief.

DAWES WANTS FEDERAL HEADS TO WORK FOR U. S.

Hopes Harding Will Stop
Spending Contest.

Boston, Mass., Jan. 20.—A reform in the business administration of the government by which President Elect Harding would hold departmental expenditures in coordinated relation to the taxable resources of the nation was advocated by Charles G. Dawes, a Chicago banker, in an address here today.

Mr. Dawes, who has been controller of the currency, spoke of the conditions that have controlled departmental expenditures in the federal government as "an impossible business system."

In carrying out an analogy between cabinet officers and the administrative vice presidents of a corporation, he said the presidents of the United States, almost without exception, had allowed their administrative vice presidents to run their particular departments and make estimates of the money which should be appropriated to them entirely without presidential supervision.

Defends Congress.

Mr. Dawes took issue with the popular tendency to blame congress for great government expenditures. He said:

"It has been the habit of many to criticize congress for the enormous expenditures of the government. As a matter of fact, the primary responsibility for extravagance has been in executive administration, and congress has been exercising the only authority which has protected our people against the riot of extravagance which has characterized departmental administration."

"During twenty years, up to and including the year 1916 (the year preceding the war) there were only two years in which congress did not cut down appropriations below the amount asked by the different departments, and the net reductions which congress made during this period in the interest of economy amounted to $45,000,000."

Has Saved Nation Billions.

"But, more important than that, within the last two years congress has cut down the estimated expenditures of the departments by millions of dollars. It has proved itself the sane and courageous defender of the people's interest amidst a chaotic and extravagant administration. So far from being opposed to a reform of the governmental business system, congress has been the leader in urging it."

"Our different departments of government have not been coordinated, and have each gone to congress for appropriations direct, thinking only of their own needs, and entirely indifferent as to the needs of the other departments or the situation of the government as a whole."

Hopes for Change in Harding Rule.

In the approaching administration of Mr. Harding Mr. Dawes evidently sees hope of a reform, for he said:

"Our new president, under the constitution, selects his cabinet, who, in our governmental system, occupy a position analogous to administrative vice presidents in a corporation. With the power of selection, he has also the power of removal, and I do not think he will temporize for a minute with the old system, so far as his power over his administrative vice presidents—so to speak—can alter it."

"If the cabinet heads are not willing to do teamwork and to coordinate and

SHERMAN'S SWAN SONG A DEFENSE OF THE PACKERS

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Senator Sherman of Illinois began his swan song today with a vigorous defense of the Chicago meat packers, a sharp attack on the Kenyon-Kendrick bill to regulate the packing industry, and a bitter denunciation of the federal trade commission.

He declared the packers had been "a great asset to ambitious politicians" for many years. "It was so," he said, "twenty-five years ago when I did penal service in the Illinois legislature."

Senator Sherman told the senate the packers had been compelled to take "staggering" losses during the present market depression, saying $25,000,000 would be a most conservative estimate of their losses the last year. The packers, he said, were compelled to spend large sums of money to offset unjust prejudices.

As an example he related how the government of Denmark declared an embargo on American pork because members of a noble family became ill after eating boiled pig from Chicago. Investigation by the American minister, he said, disclosed that the cook had boiled the pork in a kettle previously used for dyeing petticoats. Much costly advertising had to be done to offset the injury done by this incident.

The senator thought it would be more in accord with "senatorial ethics" if Senator Kendrick of Wyoming, a big cattle raiser, took a less conspicuous part in packer legislation. He also expressed gratification that W. B. Colver had retired from the chairmanship of the federal trade commission. "He has done about as much mischief there as one man could do," he said.

114 IN CONGRESS KEEP CLERK HIRE IN OWN FAMILY

Cheap Help Does Work;
Relative Gets 'Velvet.'

STAFF CORRESPONDENT.
Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—The annual report of the clerk of the house of representatives discloses that there are 114 congressmen who carry 133 wives, daughters, sons, nephews, or other relatives on the capitol pay roll as clerks.

In addition to his salary of $7,500, each member receives a clerk hire allowance of $3,200. In many instances the relative on the pay roll actually performs the work, but in many others a clerk is hired for $1,200 more or less and the remainder of the allowance is paid to the relative, who does no work. Frequently the $240 bonus paid to each member on the pay roll is given to a relative on the pay roll as a congressman's clerk.

The Family Pay Roll.
How the clerk hire allowance is kept in the family is shown by the following calculation relating to Illinois members and their relatives on the pay roll:

William E. Mason—Ethel Mason, $152.34 a month.

Edward Yates—Dorothy Yates, $228.34 a month.

James W. Yates, $78.24 a month.

Thomas S. Williams—Harold S. Williams, $182.64 a month.

Charles E. Fuller—Sarah E. Fuller, $20 a month.

Edward J. King—Mary B. King, $108 a month.

James McAndrews—George J. McAndrews, $118.47 a month.

Henry T. Rainey—Ellen M. Rainey, $112.64 a month.

Others of Middle West.

Among the other members of congress from the middle west whose relatives' names appear on the federal pay roll are John J. Esch of Wisconsin, Frank E. Doremus of Michigan, and A. J. Tolsted of Minnesota.

Miss Mary Beachel and Fred Pernod
When the operetta "Chimes of Normandy" was presented by the Bowen High School Glee clubs last night, many in the audience were surprised to learn that the scenery had been built and painted by Bowen students, and that likewise the electrical effects were all planned and operated by Bowen pupils. The girls designed the gowns and made several of the costumes. The high school orchestra presided in the pit. Among the stars in operetta were Miss Marie Obaraki, who won fame in the "Pirates of Penzance," Paul Kettler, a tenor, and Miss Mary Beachel, and Fred Pernod Jr., who gave a special feature dance number.

BRYANS LAY OUT PLAN OF REFORM FOR DEMOCRACY

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 20.—[Special.]—William J. Bryan and his brother, Charles W. Bryan, are seeking to reorganize the national Democratic party along Bryanite lines. Charles W. Bryan made the announcement today. Intensive work will be started in every part of the country, leading from the national down through the state and into each county and precinct. The plan is to be one of education.

Mr. Bryan said the campaign would be launched shortly, in conjunction with national and state legislative programs, which would be embodied, if possible, in platforms of county, state, and national conventions, to be called later.

Regarding a report that the reorganization was intended largely to eliminate the "Tammany element," Mr. Bryan said elimination of any faction would depend solely upon its members' attitude.

NO SETTLEMENT BY FIELDS, SAYS PEGGY, A BRIDE

They'll Do Right Thing,
Miss Marsh Opines.

New York, Jan. 20.—[Special.]—Peggy Marsh, propped with pillows in a rose filled room of a private sanitarium in West Sixty-third street, where she is recovering from an operation for appendicitis, denied today that the Field family of Chicago had made a settlement, either upon her or her 4 year old son, Henry Field III.

Miss Marsh is now the wife of Albert L. Johnson, a nephew of the late Tom Johnson, four times mayor of Cleveland. They were married on Jan. 5 at Greenwich, Conn., by a justice of the peace.

On the table beside Miss Marsh's bed were a large picture of her son and a brand new check book. The boy was playing beside his mother's bed—with a battered rag doll.

"They'll Do Right Thing."

"There has been no settlement on me or my son," Miss Marsh said. "The matter will come up in court next month. The members of the Field family have expressed a desire to do the right thing by me, and I believe they will, but as for any settlement of $50,000 on me and the building of a $100,000 house, that's fantastic."

"The family asked me to do certain things for the last four years—I won't say what they were—and I've done them all."

"Were you asked not to remarry?" Miss Marsh was asked.

"No. They'd not be so unreasonable as that, I'm sure."

"What are your future plans?"

Will appear in Chicago.

"I have signed a contract to appear as second lead in a show that will open shortly in Chicago, so I'm going back on the stage."

Mr. Johnson said he expected his wife would leave the sanitarium on Saturday. He added he had no objection to her return to the stage, "if she does not go into musical comedy. I'd not stand for that."

His father was Albert L. Johnson, who died in July, 1901. He was president of the Nassau Railway company, later merged with the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and was a man of great wealth. The bridegroom will not come into his inheritance until next October.

The marriage was not approved by his family, with the possible exception of his brother, Tom, he admitted.

Peggy Marsh's real name was Annabelle Greenough. She was born in Chelsea, Mass. She became acquainted with Henry Field in the Savoy Hotel, London, early in 1915.

LEGAL FIGHT TO GO ON.

The marriage of Peggy Marsh to Albert E. Johnson has not altered the status of her legal fight to obtain a portion of the estate of Marshall Field for her 4 year old son, Henry Anthony Marsh, whose father, she claims, was Henry Field. Edward F. Dunne, her counsel, and John P. Wilson Sr., attorney for the Field estate, said yesterday. Both attorneys substantiated her denial that the Field estate had agreed to recognize the claims of the lad by settling an annuity of $50,000 upon his mother.

"We have not conceded any claims that Peggy Marsh Johnson has made, nor do we intend to," Attorney Wilson said.

Attorney Dunne explained that a ruling from the Supreme court on two writs of error taken from decisions in the Superior court of Cook county on the validity of the boy's claim, is expected in March or April.

Judge Dennis E. Sullivan of the Superior court held that Marshall Field, in providing for the "issue" of his heirs, did not intend to provide for "illegitimate." Attorney Dunne has asked the Supreme court to rule Judge Sullivan in error in ruling while the boy was in Europe. Later Judge Foell, asked to construe the will, denied that the youth was entitled to two-fifths of the entire Field estate. The second writ of error was then filed in the Supreme court.

The actress has admitted that Henry Field, who died in July, 1917, had given her at least $50,000 in addition to presents. In 1919 she filed formal claim in the Probate court for $100,000 which, she said, Mr. Field had promised. The Field family did not contest the claim.

AMERICAN KILLS MEXICAN IN HEART OF MEXICO CITY

City of Mexico, Jan. 20.—An American killed a Mexican in the heart of the business section of this city today. Ramon Arguelles was standing on the balcony of his private office when B. H. Turner, an American, passed. Arguelles called Turner by name, and Turner, pulling a revolver, fired four shots, all taking effect in Arguelles' head, the body falling to the street.

Turner, after the shooting, attempted to escape, and was shot and wounded by a bystander.

The police, after a desperate resistance, arrested Turner, who was confined in the state penitentiary.

UP WITH THE TAX RATE.

The city's financial situation as revealed in argument preliminary to the council's decision to seek a bond issue of $5,000,000 to pay last year's deficit and other floating indebtedness assures Chicagoans of one thing at least—an effort to raise the tax rate once again.

Ald. Woodhull, arguing to reduce the proposed bond issue from $12,500,000 to $5,000,000, said that if bonds were issued to pay the 1921 deficit before it actually exists the council will be precluded from getting relief from the legislature. This argument also was used before the finance committee prior to the council's action. It admits a plan to spend more than the regular city income, and admits also that higher tax rates will be sought from the legislature.

Thus while almost all features of the cost of living with the exception of housing are tending downward in cost, the cost of city administration goes upward, and by this upward movement puts an added burden on every householder and flat dweller in Chicago by increasing taxes on homes and flats, thus adding to the rents, and by discouraging the building of new homes and flats which will be subject to such increasing taxation. This increased taxation, it must be remembered, is planned as an addition to increases obtained from the last legislature at city hall solicitation which make this year's tax bills 28 to 42 per cent higher than two years ago. An even greater increase would be required from this legislature if the requests from department heads should be granted by the council.

The city hall cries for relief from the effects of its own financial folly. The relief which it seeks is for the city hall, not for the city dweller. The latter will pay the bill in increased rents and increased taxes. With that point kept firmly in mind the voter might be able to provide a little relief for himself when financial issues are presented with political decorations at the polls.

WITHIN THE NAVAL HOLIDAY.

"They shall not destroy the grand fleet," declares Representative Butler of Pennsylvania, chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, discussing the proposed naval holiday. The dramatic utterance came up in a discussion of the navy which was held at a luncheon at the home of Mrs. Butler, who is a naval officer's wife, and who is a naval officer's wife, and who is a naval officer's wife.

The picture might be impressive and effective, but for the fact that as we gaze upon it there appears clearly behind the covering glass the outline of the shipbuilding plants which line the lakefront in Representative Butler's district. Mr. Butler puts the question to the naval holiday on a high patriotic plane, but at the same time he is undoubtedly in defiance of the great shipbuilding industry and investments in the congressional district.

If we could have fewer of such unfortunate coincidences in Washington we might retain a clearer faith in congress and see the national welfare protected and advanced more rapidly. It is entirely right for Representative Butler to defend the business interests of his constituents in so far as they do not conflict with the general welfare. The proposed naval holiday, however, is distinctly a matter of the general welfare. If it is thrown aside without honest effort at an arrangement which will relieve the country and the world of a terrific burden, while at the same time not subjecting any country to danger, those responsible will have much to account for. If the big navy program is supported and continued in any degree because of the interests of shipbuilders and supply men, the complaints of shippers and pacifists that war is a business scheme of capital will be to just that degree justified.

The house naval affairs committee should at least avoid any such suspicion. If our national safety can be conserved without a great naval building program, but by arrangements with Britain and Japan to retain the status quo, the nation wants to know it, and it wants the information complete and uncolored.

A NATION OFF ITS BALANCE.

Official tabulation of the figures of the 1920 census shows $4,318,032 of our people in cities of 2,500 inhabitants or more, while only $1,339,000, or considerably less than half, are rural. Perhaps in those figures lie some explanations of our unemployment problem, our business depression, our farmers' pleas for help, and similar troubles. Perhaps we are a nation off our balance, staggering dizzily until the economic burden is adjusted equally on both shoulders.

If such is the case the immigration question assumes new importance. Much of the trend of population from country to city in the last half dozen years has been artificial, due to artificial attractions and opportunities created by the war. This tide will flow back to the country as the attractions which brought it to the city weaken or are destroyed by economic hardships. But part of our city congestion has been due to immigration. This, interrupted by the war, is reviving to an alarming extent just as our disillusioned citizenry is beginning to wander back to the farm as a center of backwaters and sausage in time of need.

The natural tendency to correct our balance is handicapped. What might prove a permanent benefit in the unpleasant economic depression of the day is being prevented by the habit of immigrants of settling in cities instead of going to the farms, for which most of them are best fitted, and where many of them might be needed. As long as they refuse to go to the farms, and as long as unemployment continues in the cities, they should not be allowed to enter at all.

If a system can be developed which will keep them out of the cities, and scatter them in rural communities, there may be some excuse for allowing them to enter. This would bring about their speedier Americanization, and at the same time allow the farmers, with reduced labor costs, to produce food profitably at a price which would keep the economic balance between farm and city unimpaired. Only on such an even keel can we progress consistently.

A MOVE TOWARD BETTER HOUSING.

Indictments are reported to be imminent if they have not already been voted against some thirty mill owners, building trades leaders and contractors on the basis of the so-called "door trust" agreement which has been exposed in detail before the federal grand jury. It will be some comfort to the individuals and business concerns which have suffered at the hands of the "door trust" if those responsible for this suffering are sent to the penitentiary, but more important will be the stimulating effect upon building which such trust busting would have.

District Attorney Clyne undertook a task of vital importance to the community when he started the inquiry into what was alleged to be criminal restriction of building. This restriction, whether criminal or otherwise, has kept thousands of men out of work, prevented the construction of thousands of homes and flats, and handicapped the growth and prosperity of Chicago. It is levying tribute in the form of high rents on every resident of the city. In effect it is as evil as if it were criminal.

If the situation is thoroughly exposed and corrected the entire city will have cause for thanks, whether or not the guilty are criminally responsible.

STAGE MANAGEMENT IN OPERA.

One of the first measures of Miss Garden as director of the opera is good augury. The new official she vouches for, and we think we can afford to take her word of his competence, for Miss Garden's performances show a rare feeling for ensemble.

But there is another reason for welcoming the change. We shall not say it couldn't conceivably be for the worse. But certainly it would be hard to make it worse. The stage management of the opera has been one of the very weak links in the chain of effect. It has been frequently stupid and destructive of illusion. For example: Second act of "Andrea Chenier." Scene on the bank of the Seine in Paris. River and bridge in background, street and shops right and left. Right foreground, café tables empty, except one at which the hero is seated. He is the only human being in sight. Enter friend of hero. He is supposed to be in search of the hero. He comes on the stage virtually facing hero. He is not by a dog on a string. He is not supposed to be blind. He has no glasses and is not supposed to be near sighted. He is not assumed to be imbecile.

Does he see our hero at once and go direct to him as he would in real life? He does not. He looks everywhere on that broad stage except where he would naturally look. He looks at the river, at the bridge, down the street, at the walls of buildings, making inane rushes here and there, studiously refusing to see what in reality he could not possibly miss. If the hero were a banana peel this idiotic seeker would step on him and break his neck.

That is what the exasperated audience wishes he would do before the silly business is over. The scene is supposed to be intense. Meaningless stage business has made it ridiculous.

Where do operatic stage managers get that stuff? We will concede they have a more complicated and difficult problem than is presented by the spoken drama. But if opera is to try to approximate realism the stage direction should be as realistic as it can be made with due respect to other factors of the ensemble. At least it should not offend common sense. Our audiences are not very critical, especially opera audiences, which will swallow almost anything if a few high notes are thrown in. But there is a more discriminating part of the public which will be grateful for good things. It will appreciate good stage management even in details overlooked by the sensation seeker.

GET THE UNION STATION DONE.

The Union station is one of the chief gateways of the city. What an introduction it gives the visitor! It is an eyesore, a model of inconvenience, inefficiency and ugliness.

The whole city and all the territory whose people come to us by way of the Pennsylvania will greet with satisfaction the news that the chief engineer of the station has submitted a construction program to the city authorities. The war is over. Strikes are always with us. What the city wants is action, as expeditious as possible.

We trust the work will be pushed now to completion.

Editorial of the Day

MARY GARDEN OPERA HEAD.

(The Illinois State Register.)

Lovers of good music who have viewed with concern the serious difficulties through which the Chicago Grand Opera association has been passing are delighted with the announcement that Mary Garden has been selected director of the company. She will not only assume charge of the business management and artistic arrangement of the opera, but will appear in stellar roles as usual.

This is woman's age, and nothing could be more fitting than that a brilliant woman like Mary Garden should accept this difficult dual role of opera star and general director.

Springfield is pleased because, due to the successful grand opera season here last year, we feel this city has much more than casual interest in the success of the Chicago company.

Both the company and Mary Garden are to be congratulated upon the new honors placed at the feet of this opera queen.

As she stands before the footlights of public interest receiving the plaudits of the music lovers of America the State Register is pleased to send up these flowers marked with a card:

"Best wishes from Springfield."

MARY GARDEN.

(Grand Rapids News.)

The Chicago Grand Opera company has determined to let Mary Garden manage its affairs during the rest of this year and all of next. That means Our Mary will be the real director of opera at the Auditorium.

Undoubtedly the Chicago organization has reached a wise decision. Miss Garden knows opera all the way, she should know the whims, peculiarities and peccadilloes of prima donnas and they are many—and she knows how to keep abreast of the times. In fact, she is one of the innovators of opera, clever, resourceful, daring. And she can get along with almost anybody—even with prima donnas—when she has her way.

The country, and Europe as well, will watch with interest what shall happen in Chicago. Undoubtedly the French, the Italians, and the Spanish will throw their hands in the air as they shout, "What, a woman director of opera? Possé!"

In the season wherein coughs, colds, grippe, and influenza are most prevalent the politeness reporter is never immune.

So it was with a well developed ailment that the reporter sallied forth yesterday in search of the multitudinous remedies offered for sale in multi-colored wrappers on the drug store counters.

It wasn't until he had visited the third place that he decided that drug stores in bloc would be a logical objective in the search for courtesy.

Finally Awards Prize.

After garnering half a peck of bottles, packages, pills, and salves he journeyed into his sixteenth stopping point—the Owl Drug store at Madison and Clark streets. There he found and awarded the day's $50 prize to Fred C. Dinse, whose home address is 1885 Longwood drive.

"I gotta gold," announced the reporter, flourishing a decidedly damp handkerchief. "Wind's good for it?"

"Any tightness in the chest besides the cold in the head?" inquired Mr. Dinse, who had already noted from the red nose and inflamed eyelids of the reporter the latter ailment.

"It's just in the head," enunciated the news gatherer in a slightly choked voice. Mr. Dinse reached for a box of pills.

"No. You won't sell me dose—I gotta bottle and dey are no good," the reporter continued.

Rejects Many Pills.

For half an hour the politeness seeker looked at and rejected every brand of cough medicine in the shop. Then the talk ran to sleeping powders, tussle cures, fountain pens, and safety razor blades. The prospective purchaser was a hard man to suit.

Did Mr. Dinse lose patience in all this time? He didn't. He explained the virtues of his wares politely long after the reporter had broken all the rules of conduct for a bargain hunter. And when the dissatisfied customer started for the door he was ready with a—

"Thank you, sir, and call again!"

There were others who were polite to the sufferer during the afternoon.

It was only after some consideration that Mr. Dinse got the prize.

For honorable mention let us note that a girl clerk in Buck & Rayner's store at Madison and State streets was quite patient and that a young man at the McLean Drug store on Wilson avenue was considered.

No Signs of Peevishness.

In Mr. Dinse's behavior, however, there was not the slightest sign of wandering attention—not the slightest move to break away to another and more satisfactory customer, and there were several in the place not waited on.

"I try to treat them all alike," said Dinse afterwards. "My job is to turn out satisfied customers—customers that will come back to the store again for more of the same treatment. But I'm not the only one—we're all the same in this store. If you'd quizzed all the rest you would have had a hard time picking. I can tell you."

"What am I going to do with the fifty? There's lots of uses for money these days, isn't there?"

M. V. L. ASSAILS RULE OF MAYOR; TABS ALDERMEN

Suggests 'Bust Chicago' as City Slogan.

In its annual preliminary report which appeared yesterday the Municipal Voters' league reviewed the effect upon the citizen of five years of Thompson rule.

"We have today a condition unparalleled in the history of Chicago," read the opening section, "the absolute domination by a small political ring of virtually all the governmental activities of the community."

"We have seen the administration of the city service become a coarse farce. We have witnessed our public school system, an institution we had hoped was sacred, made the battleground of cynical spoliators."

Funds' Waste Charged.

"The public funds have been absorbed out by devices unique in municipal experience—an extra $50,000 to the corporation counsel's office for 'services' in connection with a loan to the city from banks, hundreds of thousands of dollars to lawyers and 'experts' who possessed at least one qualification—their adherence to the Thompson-Lundin machine—and a constantly soaring demand by the various city department heads in order to care for their faithful followers."

"In these five years we have seen Chicago's finances go from bad to worse, until some one has suggested that the slogan is 'Bust Chicago' instead of 'Boost Chicago,' and now we are confronted with the sorry spectacle of the city administration asking the voters to approve a bond issue of $3,000,000 to take care of last year's deficit, with every indication that the deficit this year will be even greater."

"And during all of this time taxes have steadily increased."

Passes on Candidate.

The opinion of the league of the candidates for reelection follows:

1. Michael Kenna: utterly unfit.
2. Louis B. Anderson: gross indignation was aroused last year by his activities in behalf of Policeman Dorsey Chambliss.
3. John H. Passmore: good record.
4. Timothy A. Hogan: full of energy and snap; frequently votes with the city hall element.
5. Joseph B. McDonough: allows no dictation to control his vote.
6. Ross A. Woodhull: one of the council leaders; frequently lines up with the city administration.
7. Guy Maddern: colorless record.
8. Frank Klaus: record shows continued progress.
9. Dennis A. Horan: bears good reputation in council.

Praise for Cermak.

10. Anton J. Cermak: probably superior to any other alderman in push and driving power.
11. Samuel O. Shaffer: good reputation.
12. George M. Maypole: good record; general attitude on public questions commendable.
13. Edward J. Kaindl: record showing some improvement.
14. Stanley Adamkiewicz: goes along with city hall.
15. John J. Touhy: generally good record.
16. John Powers: one of the leaders of the discredited element.
17. Henry L. Pick: goes along with the city hall element.
18. Dorsey B. Crowe: has courage and shows capacity for development.
19. Matthew Hibbler: has consistently followed the city hall leaders.

Wallace Is Commended.

20. Thomas O. Wallace: good record; has voted steadily for economy; his stand is invariably in favor of good government measures.
21. James Dorney: has steadily followed the city hall leaders.
22. William F. Lappe: his ability, energy, and skill have made him one of the council leaders.
23. Edward B. Armistead: has consistently followed the city hall leaders.
24. James F. Kovarik: has voted too frequently for extreme appropriations, but has displayed a commendable attitude on public questions in general.
25. Scott H. Hogan: has followed the city hall leaders.
26. Albert J. Fisher: has stood consistently for economy in expenditures; one of the most valuable aldermen.
27. John P. Garner: has followed the city hall leaders consistently.
28. Joseph O. Koster: man of energy and

THE BANK OF KINDNESS

Draw a Check on It Payable to the Unfortunate.

BY REV. G. A. MACWHORTER.

If the flour that Herbert Hoover has sold to the Polish government on credit does not arrive the whole population will starve. This was the answer of Frederick J. Libby, European commissioner for the Society of Friends, to the complaint of Senator Reed that the Hoover fund had been used to help support the Polish army during its campaign into Russia.

"Regardless of the military policy of the Polish government," said Mr. Libby, "Mr. Hoover recognized the need of the people for food. If the relief does not keep coming, they will have nothing to eat after February. A few potatoes are left, scarcely anything else."

Mrs. Pearl Larson of 1904 North Clark street, a returned near east relief worker, will speak before St. Margaret's guild at St. Margaret's church, Seventy-third street and Coles avenue, this afternoon. Mrs. Larson was a nurse in the typhus camps at Harport, 500 miles from a railroad, for nearly a year and has a most interesting story of conditions in the Turk harassed regions of Armenia.

So desperate is the situation in the western part of Shantung province, China, where 15,000,000 Chinese are starving to death because of two consecutive crop failures, that many are selling their children to their more fortunate countrymen. Although the Chinese hold family ties as sacred as any other nationality, and more so than some, they are parting with their children in order that the little ones may have food and that they may sustain their own lives for a short period with the small sum received for the children.

35. John S. Clark: is credited with honesty and public spirit.

The report gives particular praise to two aldermen who are not candidates for reelection—A. A. McCormick and Henry D. Captain.

"We just MISS FRANCES wanted to have LOUISE STEVENS, said Miss Stevens. "Our engagement was announced some time ago, but the wedding is not scheduled to take place until some time next month. In fact, the exact date has not yet been agreed upon."

A Danger Warning—Bleeding Gums

Are your gums tender? Do they bleed when brushed? If so—watch out for Pyorrhea.

This disease of the gums, which afflicts four out of five people over forty, not only destroys the teeth, but often wrecks the health.

In Pyorrhea, the gums become spongy, then recede; the teeth decay, loosen and fall out—or must be extracted to rid the system of the infecting Pyorrhea germs which breed in pockets about them. These germs lower the body's vitality and cause many diseases.

You can keep Pyorrhea away. Visit your dentist often for tooth and gum inspection, and use Forhan's For the Gums.

Forhan's For the Gums prevents Pyorrhea—or checks its progress, if used in time and used consistently. Ordinary dentifrices cannot do this. Forhan's keeps the gums firm and healthy—the teeth white and clean.

Start using it today. If your gums have receded, use Forhan's according to directions, and consult a dentist immediately for special treatment.

Man of Mystery

MAY BE KEY TO INSULL ROBBERIES

The identity of the three men who attempted to rob the Samuel Insull summer home near Libertyville early New Year's morning and shot and kidnapped a night watchman who surprised them, may be known to a man who has lain for the last three weeks in the Lake County hospital at Waukegan, his mind a blank.

Pinkerton detective, employed by Mr. Insull, believes the "man of mystery" was either an accomplice of the robbers or one of their victims. In a brief moment of apparent coherence the man said his name was John Anderson.

When the robbers were surprised they shot and wounded Samuel Van Dersy, a private watchman, threw him into their car and sped along the Milwaukee road towards Chicago. Subsequently the car was wrecked and abandoned on the northwest side with Van Dersy unconscious in the rear seat.

Half an hour after the car had passed along the road Marshal Dennis Lambray found a man, almost frozen, unconscious in a ditch. He evidently had been struck by a passing machine or thrown from one. He is about 50 years old.

HOOPER WARNS AGAINST DRASTIC LAWS ON GRAIN

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—(Special.)—Establishment of a national marketing board of experts to act with the voluntary cooperation of grain exchanges was favored by Herbert C. Hoover today before the house committee on agriculture now holding hearings on proposed regulation of grain exchanges.

Mr. Hoover suggested a limit of 500,000 bushels in any one trade with power vested in the board to extend this limit when necessary.

S-W Flat-Tone Wall Paint

can't be equalled for beauty and wear

And it adds light, too. Some of the brighter shades of FLAT-TONE applied on the walls and ceilings of a room have been found to almost double the illumination. And it's of better quality—soft, rich and restful on the eyes.

FLAT-TONE won't crack, chip or blister. Soiled spots may be easily cleaned without fear of discoloring the painted surface. The colors will not fade—they wear for years.

S-W FLAT-TONE Multi-Color Effects

By simply mottling one or more different colors over the first Flat-Tone coat, the most artistic multi-color effects are obtained. This is a recent development which is in great popular demand. The decorative scheme may be kept alive and interesting, and at a very small cost.

S-W FLAT-TONE System Effects

This is the method used so extensively in producing the attractive, two-toned, blended effects. It calls for the application of a transparent color coat over the Flat-Tone background. The finish dries flat with no chalky appearance, is very durable and easily kept dirt-free and sanitary.

Our Decorative Department

will gladly assist you in planning color schemes for any one room or all the rooms in your home. We suggest the kind of finish, the most appropriate colors, etc. This service is entirely free of charge. Phone or write us for more intimate details.

Is Your House Going To Turn Out Right?

DOES your house show signs of getting stiff and classic, just when you wanted it to develop into something nice and rambling? Everything you put into a house counts, from the cement in the cellar to the final wax on the floors. And according to the taste and judgment you use now, when you open your hall door a few months from now you'll walk into a home—or just a house. And that's what House & Garden is for—to encourage homes.

HOUSE & GARDEN

On Sale Now

THIS IS THE BUILDING NUMBER

IN this issue there's an article on transplanting architecture that shows how we can borrow some of the old-world charm of foreign buildings. And one on an Italian garden that shows what we could do—and usually don't—with a little walled-in space.

WOULD you like magnolias to bloom in your garden this spring? They're here, with all their hows and whys. You'd rather have a swimming-pool? Certainly—dimensions, foundations and all. You want things inside the house? Very well, here they are.

BRIGHT hangings for your windows, frames for paintings, mirrors of all sizes and shapes. And you'll find three houses—not too large to be livable—photographed in this issue, and their floor plans sitting beside them. There are plans, too, for a garage and service house. And there's an article on the decorative possibilities of rain-water pipe-heads. If you didn't know there were any, you've something pleasant to learn. And you'll find the article on garden axes (plural of axis) very helpful if you'd thought of laying out a garden and didn't know just how to begin.

ARTIST STORRS MUST LIVE IN U.S. OR LOSE LEGACY

Father's Will Bars Residence in Foreign Land.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

What would you do if you were an artist and a hard-hearted father threatened to cut you out of his will?

John Storrs, a well-known Chicago artist, is facing this problem. His father, D. W. Storrs, who died recently, left a will in which he provided that the income from his estate should be paid to his son, John, if he remained in the United States. If John should leave the country, the income would go to his father's estate.

JOHN STORRS.

The clause in the will is interpreted with such vengeance by executors of the will, that, though Mr. Storrs is a resident of Chicago, he is being forced to leave the country.

Mr. Storrs, who has spent the last ten years in Europe, is being forced to leave the country. He is being forced to leave the country.

JAPS' ARROGANCE SPREADS TERROR IN VLADIVOSTOK

Rule Siberian City as if by Martial Law.

BY FREDERICK SMITH.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

HONOLULU, Jan. 20.—Since the Japanese shot up Vladivostok last April they have ruled that city with a high hand.

At present they have 10,000 troops stationed there to impose their will on the Russian inhabitants.

The American consul's protest against the Japanese seizure of the city resulted in the lowering of countless Japanese flags which were then immediately raised over the main buildings after imperial rifles had spread terror and death among the Russians.

In addition to troops the Japanese have erected a powerful wireless plant in the main street of the city.

Japanese soldiers, singly or in squads, constantly patrol every block.

Keep Citizens on Jump.

While the soldiers keep the city's people on the jump, shrewd citizens from Nippon are buying up the choicest property and making other strategic moves to clinch their hold on commercial preeminence.

So confident are the Japanese that they will be the permanent possessors of the city, that they have adopted methods which are almost incredible on the part of a great nation.

They have not hesitated to seize a port, the doorway to the measureless resources of Siberia, although they are not at war with Russia.

American business and personal mail, both outgoing and incoming, is censored by the Japanese, who compel the Russian postal officials to permit them to share a large room in which the Russians censor mail.

All mail is opened and always delayed. Frequently the censors do not even take the trouble to close the envelopes with stickers.

Americans are compelled to furnish full translations with all cable messages. Most foreign mail arrives at Vladivostok via the Japanese steamer Hosen Maru and although the ship arrives on Monday the mail is not delivered until the following Thursday or Friday.

American business concerns are forced to pay an 18 per cent ad valorem export tax and also they encounter considerable red tape in securing permission to export goods from the port and import committee—which is composed of Russians who are under the thumb of the Japanese.

Japs Ignore Taxes.

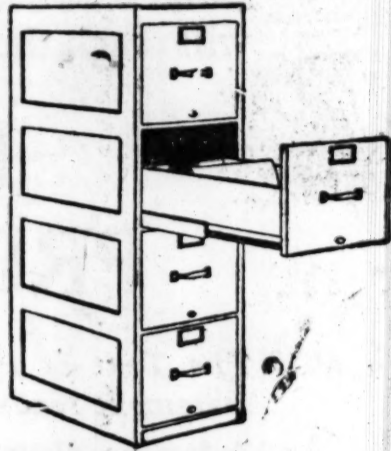

But the Japs uniformly ignore the customs and tax regulations and load their ships, guarded by their soldiers, without paying any taxes.

The Chicago Tribune correspondent, before and since leaving Yokohama, has been supplied with full information on these matters by three leading American business men of Vladivostok, two of whom are now on their way to San Francisco after experiences which make Japanese claims of friendship and business sincerity seem like sounding brass.

Their names are not used because it might subject them to severe inconvenience in adjusting claims which are already the basis of bitter feeling against the Japanese.

AUDITOR AGREES TO PRODUCE FOX CASE VOUCHERS

Lawyers Compromise on New Subpoena.

As a result of a two hour conference of attorneys representing various interests in the William Fox election fraud case, State's Attorney Crowe yesterday withdrew his demand on State Auditor Andrew Russell for the production of all vouchers drawn by the office of Attorney General Edward J. Brundage during the period of the Fox inquiry.

As a substitute, a new subpoena duces tecum for vouchers issued by the Thiel Detective Service company, P. J. Doyle, George T. Kenney, MacLay Hoyne, Thomas D. Nash, T. J. Barrett, Clyde L. Day, and Thomas Marshall was drawn. Auditor Russell and representatives of the attorney general agreed to honor this latter and more specific subpoena, with the proviso that the papers involved will be submitted first to Chief Justice Charles A. McDonald for a ruling as to their value and admissibility as material evidence in the case.

Only One Voucher Found.

It was learned yesterday that only one voucher, and that in recompense to Special Prosecutor Clyde L. Day for legal services, has as yet been found by the state auditor. This voucher, together with any others which may appear, will be turned over to Judge McDonald on Feb. 1.

Those present at the conference, which was held in Judge McDonald's chambers, were Henry T. Chase, special counsel representing State's Attorney Crowe; State Auditor Andrew Russell, Edward S. Day, first assistant state's attorney; Assistant Attorney General Charles F. Mansfield, John J. Reeve, personal adviser of State Auditor Russell, and former Public Utilities Commissioner James H. Wilkinson, representing Mr. Brundage.

Brundage Is Defended.
"Not a single dollar was drawn by Attorney General Brundage in the Fox case directly or indirectly," Assistant Attorney General Mansfield said after the conference. "This point should be clearly brought out."

"Our office, however, is conducting a wide investigation into many other things than election frauds."

"The names of many of our investigators are kept secret for obvious reasons. These investigators are paid from public funds and their names appear on the vouchers. For that reason we don't want all the attorney general's records thrown open for a miscellaneous examination."

"There are no records to which State's Attorney Crowe is not welcome providing he will specify the records he seeks. We are not holding back anything and we are not trying to interfere with a full investigation of this affair. We are only trying to protect other investigations we have under way from the publicity which would ruin everything we have accomplished."

China Is Starving!

Due to two consecutive crop failures, thirty million Chinese in the northern provinces of China are threatened with death by starvation unless they receive outside help to carry them until June when the new crops will be available. The situation is desperate and calls for immediate relief. A good organization has been built up in China to procure the wheat, corn or beans which will sustain life, and effectively to distribute the same so that one, and in some cases two, bowls of soup may be furnished each day. This relief will cost about one cent per person per day, and the Chinese will give their labor free for the needed construction of roads, river levees, canal improvements, etc. Practically every cent contributed will reach these starving Chinese in food.

Proclamation by PRESIDENT WILSON

The Text of President Wilson's statement reads:

A famine, alarming in its proportions, today holds in its grip several important provinces in China. The crop failure is complete, and the present distress, which is great, is likely, before Winter has run its course, to become appalling. In fact, our diplomatic and consular agencies in China inform me that the loss resulting from death in distressing form may run into millions of souls. It is certain that the local Government and established agencies of relief are unable to cope with the magnitude of the disaster which faces them.

Under the circumstances, relief to be effective should be granted quickly. Once more an opportunity is offered to the American people to show that prompt and generous response with which they have invariably met the call of their brother nations in distress.

The case of China I regard as especially worthy of the earnest attention of our citizens. To an unusual degree the Chinese people look to us for counsel and for effective friendship. Our churches, through their religious and medical missionaries, their schools and colleges, and our philanthropic foundations have rendered China an incalculable benefit, which her people recognize with gratitude and devotion to the United States. Therefore, not only in the name of humanity but in that of the friendliness which we feel for a great people in distress, I venture to ask that our citizens shall, even though the task of giving is not today a light one, respond as they can to this distant but appealing cry for help.

In order to be assured of the orderly collection of such donations, large or small, as may be offered, I have invited a nation-wide committee, whose names are attached hereto, to lend their aid to this matter. I have designated Thomas W. Lamont, of New York City, to act as Chairman of this committee, and Norman Davis, Under-Secretary of State, to act as Treasurer.

I realize that this call, added to those for the underfed children of Eastern Europe and the afflicted peoples of the Near East, and to the needs of our own country, makes heavy the demand upon the bounty of the nation. I am confident, however, that all these pleas will be answered in generous spirit.

The United States has many friends among the nations of the world, but nowhere is greater, deeper friendship manifested for our country than by the government and the 400,000,000 people of China. They take advantage of every opportunity to express their gratitude to America for the return twenty years ago, of the Boxer Indemnity which enables them to educate their people and later send them to American colleges. Never will they forget what America may do for them in this very dark hour of misery and suffering when tens of thousands of their industrious, patient, courteous, peaceful people are dying daily for the need of a little food. Help great and grateful China in her hour of awful need.

MASONS PLAN TO BUILD $8,000,000 TEMPLE IN LOOP

Masons, tired of paying exorbitant rents for lodge halls in the loop, are planning to build a downtown temple to cost approximately $8,000,000.

The campaign for the building, while not officially launched, was announced yesterday at the meeting of the grand lodge school, held at Central Masonic temple, 910 North La Salle street. Committees will be appointed and organized for the drive effected on Lincoln's birthday, Feb. 12, at a meeting of Welcome to the Masonic temple, State and Randolph streets.

The movement to build a great temple in the loop has been on foot for several years. It was brought up at the school by Samuel P. Reese, grand master, and heartily endorsed by Grand Master Daniel Fitzgerald of Illinois, and Elmer E. Beach, deputy grand master.

Large Rentals Paid.
There are approximately 205,000

master Masons in Illinois," said Mr. Reese. "We have been paying large sums in rentals and it has long been our desire to have a suitable building in which all lodges of the city may meet. Altogether, I presume Chicago lodges are paying $200,000 a year for rentals and that would be a big step toward paying for a large building."

It was explained that the movement will be fostered by the lodges of Chicago and Cook county in cooperation with the Chicago commandery.

Fitzgerald Approves Move.

"As an individual and not speaking for the grand lodge, I can only heartily endorse the plan and pledge my cooperation," said Grand Master Fitzgerald. "It has been a need for many years."

The building will be planned to include numerous halls and storage space for valuable paraphernalia of the grand lodge. There are but a few loop halls in which lodge meetings may be held, Mr. Reese asserted.

All masters and past masters, secretaries and other leading Masons have been invited to attend the Lincoln birthday meeting of Welcome lodge to take part in the opening of the drive.

Employees of the Hub Get Bonuses Tonight

The thirty-third annual distribution of bonuses to employees of The Hub will take place tonight. More than 600 employees will participate in the distribution. The Hub was the first retail store in Chicago to award bonuses to workers, and to date more than $430,000 has been given employees. George Lytton, vice president, will speak at tonight's meeting.

TRIPLE DEBATE SET FOR TONIGHT.
The University of Chicago debating team will participate in a triple debate with Northwestern university and the University of Michigan tonight.

"EGG SWINDLER" AGAIN AT WORK; U. S. ON TRAIL

Edward A. Bates, known to federal authorities as "the egg swindler with a dozen aliases" and declared one of the cleverest confidence men in the country, is again operating in Chicago. Information to that effect was received yesterday, when a postcard written by Bates was discovered in the mails.

"This man is one of the slickest criminals I have ever encountered," Albert E. Germer, chief postal inspector, said. "He has been arrested in scores of cities, indicted both here and in St. Louis, and even served a penitentiary term. Yet he still sticks to the same old game of swindling farmers and produce dealers by offering them high prices for eggs and other stealing the shipments consigned to him."

It is estimated that in the twenty years which Bates is known to have operated he has swindled farmers out of from $15,000 to $25,000. A postcard signed "William A. Morris" led to the discovery of his whereabouts. Mr. Germer recognized the handwriting as that of Bates, who he had arrested several times in the past.

Although postal authorities seized several of the packages shipped to Bates, he is still at large.

STATE DECLARES MRS. PEETE SHOT JACOB C. DENTON

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20.—Details of the discovery of a body, which the prosecution contends was that of Jacob Charles Denton, were related today in the testimony of Rush Blodgett, an attorney, called as a witness for the state in the trial of Mrs. Louise L. Peete for the alleged murder of Denton.

Thomas Lee Woolwine, district attorney, told the jury he "intended to prove Mrs. Peete shot and killed Denton," and later "masqueraded" as Denton's widow, took charge of his property, forged his name to checks, and tried to sell the home in the cellar of which his body was found.

Mrs. Peete listened calmly to this. Denton's daughter, who lived in Phoenix, Ariz., became anxious and retained a law firm to make inquiries about her father, Blodgett said. That day a man got him into the case and he saw a pile of earth near the doorway of a small room, against which were piled some boxes. One of these boxes had "Mrs. R. C. Peete" painted on it. Blodgett testified he and Cody broke into the room and found a heap of dirt that was spread over it and pieces of a shoe piled on the canvas.

FINDING PLAYER FOR FIRST BASE EVERS' BIG TASK

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

When the Cubs begin spring training in their California camp in about six weeks, Manager Evers will direct a large portion of his attention to the first base position.

President Veck of the north side's stated yesterday that Evers seemed of the opinion that the success of the Cubs in the next pennant fight depended largely upon the outcome of the first base problem. He indicated that the manager figured that the weak spot of the team.

With the hope of discovering a suitable man for the job, President Veck already has five first basemen on the list and says he will have one more before the squad leaves for the coast.

May Release Merkle.

With six fellows contesting for the position, there should be sufficient competition to draw out the best in the recruits trying for the place. The only veteran in the bunch is Fred Merkle, who still is on the club, but might be traded or released outright, though at present waiting there is no certainty that any of the youngsters can handle the job as well as the veteran.

Besides Merkle, the players who will be tried out on the job are Turner Barber, who played it a part of last season, Ray Grimes, a youngster of promise who starred in the Eastern league, Earl Marriot, once a Cub recruit as an outfielder or infielder who did some bang up performing last year with the leading club, and Tom Whelan, a college and semi-pro star from Boston, and the candidate who still is unnamed. There is a suspicion that the unnamed man is the most likely one of them all and may cause a surprise when he is announced.

Rowland Seeks Cub Players.

Clarence Rowland, who has taken the job of bossing the Columbus club in the American association, called at the Cub office yesterday and had a long talk with President Veck. Clarence needs several ball players and hoped to get some of the surplus material from the north side team, but is hardly likely to have a chance at any of the young fellows until after Evers has looked them over. In the meantime, Rowland has arranged to take the Columbus club to Texas for training and has looked some games against big league teams down there. He may get a player or two from the Cubs, but not until near the end of the training season at least.

KERR RETURNS

$6,500 OFFER TO WHITE SOX

Paris, Tex., Jan. 20.—Dick Kerr, star left-hander of the White Sox, said this morning that a contract with $6,500 salary had been offered him, but that he had returned it with a request for more money. He added he felt confident an agreement would be reached satisfactory to all.

At the office of the Chicago White Sox yesterday it was said the officials were not worrying about the reported holding out of Dick Kerr. They had no comment to make other than to say they were confident Kerr would be on hand when the club leaves for training quarters.

BIG TEAM NOMINATED BY NORWEGIAN A.A. FOR TRIB ICE RACES

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.

Norwegian American A. A. one of the leading skating organizations in the middle west, yesterday nominated a team of twenty-four skaters for the Trib Ice Skates Derby.

The skaters were signed by Charles B. Hansen, hustling coach of the skating team.

Aside from the Steinmetz brothers, who had previously sent in their entries, fifteen well known experts will represent the club in the senior Silver Skates derby, six in the Junior Silver Skates derby, and Miss Olga Anderson will be the club's representative in the girls' Silver Skates event.

While Julian Steinmetz and his brother Bill are expected to make a strong bid for first place in the senior race, Oscar Lundquist has shown to good advantage all season. In a two mile handicap in a recent meet, Lundquist showed exceptional endurance and if he pulls out the field from the first, he may have a good chance to win.

Other stars of note in the big race are Wallace Fee, a veteran of many races, Birger Berg, Roy Mobeck and Lars Lundquist.

If they show continued improvement a great race should result with Reed of Optimates club and Storch of Swift playground as other possible contenders. This race is attracting just as large a field of entries as the main event.

In order to make the races as fast and interesting as possible, a gold medal will be given to the skaters who set pace for the greatest number of laps in each event.

RICKARD OFFERS TO TAKE BRADY'S SHARE IN FIGHT

TRIBUNE DECISIONS

Opponents of Tribune boxing representatives are:
—Don David beat Pat McCarthy
—Joe Mandell drew with —Gaston [10]. Bud Chaney beat —Hank [15].
—Helen, Tex-Harry Greb beat Johnny —Hansen [19].

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—After a conference late this afternoon between Tex Rickard and William A. Brady, the former announced he had offered to take over Brady's interest in the proposed Dempsey-Carpentier bout.

The Associated Press that Brady refused to accept the offer until he had consulted with his wife, said Cochran, the third joint promoter in the project, who Brady cables Cochran.

Brady agreed, however, to communicate with Cochran by cable and assert whether the latter desired to continue in the project with Rickard or whether he should be declined to accept Rickard's offer. The conference lasted more than an hour and when Rickard left Brady, he said his offer was the only concrete result of the discussion.

According to Rickard, the interests of Cochran in this country were in charge of Brady, who holds a power of attorney for Cochran, but there was no direct evidence that the latter declined to abandon his share in the match.

Where's Missing Bond?
This conference was the outstanding feature of another day of controversy over the match for the heavyweight championship of the world between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, who could be canceled because of alleged non-fulfillment of conditions. Much of the discussion appeared to hinge upon the status of the missing bond as a way of settling Dempsey's sureties.

According to Rickard, Kearns, and others, such a bond for $50,000 was made up by the champion and his manager, but its whereabouts at this time is shrouded in mystery.

Not Deposited in Bank.
Mails of the Central Union Trust company of this city stated emphatically that the bond was not in their possession as called for by the contract dated on Nov. 5, 1920.

Kearns telegraphed to a local representative to break into his personal deposit box in order to ascertain if the bond had been placed there or not, but the result of this search has not been announced late today.

The bonds of the three promoters of the money put up in France by Carpentier have been accounted for apparently and only Dempsey's forfeit is missing.

Rickard stated several times during the day that he had no desire or intention to hold the other promoters to their contract should they desire to withdraw, and that he stood ready to assume full and individual responsibility for carrying out the match. Such a move would require Rickard to post the full $100,000 forfeit of the promoters and assume responsibility for a $100,000 purse.

Everything O. K.—Edgren.
Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 20.—The contract for a heavyweight championship fight between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier has not been necessarily violated if Dempsey's forfeit is not on deposit with the Central Union Trust company of New York, Robert Edgren, named in the contract as "sole arbiter," said tonight.

"The contract provides the forfeit shall be deposited with the bank or with the promoters," Edgren said.
"Tex Rickard, promoter, wired me today Dempsey's money was posted, and I have no reason to doubt his statement."

Edgren said he did not consider the situation one that called for action by him as arbiter.

RICKARD'S FIGURES SHOW FIGHTERS TAKE THE JOY OUT OF LIFE

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—(Special.)—Discussion of the Dempsey-Carpentier bout led Tex Rickard to get slightly afraid today. It indicates one reason why there is friction among the promoters.

"Since I took charge of Madison Square garden less than six months ago," Rickard said, "the receipts from matches have been close to $1,000,000. Of this estimated sum the boxers have taken close to 50 per cent, or about $500,000.

"Taxes in the form of city, state, and national charges have amounted to at least $225,000, leaving not more than $250,000 with which to meet upkeep of the garden, salaries of a large clerical force, and a dozen other fixed charges before the stockholders of the exhibition company can begin to think about dividends."

Pugilistic Pointers

INDIANA HARBOR is going to stage a boxing show Jan. 28 in which the feature bouts will be provided by two brothers, Sammy and Joe Mandell of Rockford, bantam-weights. Sammy boxes Ollie O'Neill and Joe scrapes Frankie Hart. In a prelim Kid Hogan meets Johnny Quinn. All bouts are scheduled for ten rounds.

Frank Mulkern, who stages the Lew Tendler-Willie Jackson scrap
Wednesday, last night announced there would be three ten round bouts on his card. In the other bouts Joe Berger meets Danny Kramer at 122 pounds and Otto Wallace tackles Eddie Boehme at 135 pounds.

Low Tendler, the crack Philadelphia outlaw lightweight, and Conle Tait, the Canadian star, who is now in Chicago, yesterday were matched. This information was handed out by Larry Lichtenstein, who is now managing Tait. The date and place of the bout have not been decided.

Willie Green, the former Navy star lightweight, returned to Chicago yesterday after boxing several bouts in eastern rings and when he landed at home was handed a surprise package. Everybody wanted to know how ex-Champion Freddie Welsh knocked him out. As the former Navy boxer didn't know anything about it, he naturally was "at sea." Seems there's another Willie Green operating in eastern rings and it wasn't our Willie who led with his chin.

SERIOUS CHARGE FACES PROMOTER OF KENOSHA RING

Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 20.—[Special.]— Charges of a serious nature have been made against officials of Kenosha and Kenosha county, or at least against men who were the badge of authority at the recent boxing show staged at the Coliseum here, and Promoter W. J.
Frazier has been directed by the Wisconsin state boxing commission not to stage any more shows until an investigation is completed.

In a formal order received here today
Manning Vaughan, secretary of the Wisconsin athletic commission, ordered Promoter Frazier to appear before the commission on Monday, Jan. 24, to explain the situation.

In the Wake of the News

MICHIGAN'S REPLY.
PUBLICATION in The Wake of charges that Michigan basketball players were "graced" in the game with Wisconsin has brought copies of the apology, explanation, and expression of regret from Director of Athletics Hartelme of Michigan to Athletic Director Tom Jones of Wisconsin and Wisconsin Alumnus
Erdman, who preferred the charges;
also from Coach Mather of Michigan to Coach Meanwell of Wisconsin.

The explanation is perhaps best phrased by Mr. Hartelme in his communication to Mr. Jones: "I regret very much that what might have appeared a deliberate attempt on the part of our basketball coach and trainer to resort to unfair and unsportsmanlike tactics occurred in our basketball game."

"Four of the five men coming on the floor the second half had a greasy rubbing ointment on their shoulders and arms which came to the attention of the official shortly after the second half had started."

"I am satisfied, after careful investigation, that neither Mr. Mather, our basketball coach, nor Mr. Fallon, our trainer, had any intention to allow the men to appear on the floor in this manner. As a matter of fact, Mr. Mather caught the fifth man himself and rubbed the ointment off."

"The other four men got away while
Mr. Fallon was engaged in rubbing down a couple of probable substitutes.
I would not in the least blame Wisconsin for resenting what occurred, but I trust that Wisconsin will see fit to accept our explanation and apology."

To which Mr. Jones replied to Mr.
Bartelme: "I have your letter in regard to the matter of ointment on the arms and shoulders of the basketball men in our game with you at Ann Arbor. No doubt they were copying ancient Greeks, whose custom it was to anoint the bodies of their athletes. I can readily see how this could happen without the knowledge of any one in authority and Wisconsin is very glad to promptly forget the matter."

Well, that ends it for The Wake, too.
The very fact that such a trick, if intentional, would be patent to the opposition, is an additional argument to strengthen the Wolverine explanation.

As we suspected, the financial ill of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight were attrophied expectations of huge gate receipts on the part of the promoters.

MEXICO TO PAY RAILWAY DEBTS, RELEASE LINES

(Chicago Tribune-New York Times Cable.)
[Copyright: 1921.]

Mexico City, Jan. 20.—President Obregon received the foreign correspondents in the national palace today and answered questions for an hour and a half.

One of his statements was that the directors of the Mexican railways were authorized by the president to enter into arrangements with creditors for fixing the amounts due and to make arrangements so that the railways could be placed in proper condition for return.

"I do not think," he said, "that it is just or moral to return the railways now, without giving an opportunity to the creditors to make the amounts known. There is a proper way to settle debts. We used these roads for many years of revolution. Now that they are wrecked we cannot say 'Take them' without making an honorable and just settlement."

Will Release Express Company.

The Wells, Fargo & Co. express, being under contract with the railways, will be returned the same time. Speaking of the banking situation, Gen. Obregon stated that a new prospect consisted in the establishment of six to eight banking zones, with a bank in each. These will be banks of emission. The government will purchase stock in each in order to have control.

The president added that a number of foreigners had offered money to start the banks, some through Mexicans and others directly to the banks, which will have capital amounting to ten to twenty-five millions. Banks which before the revolution were banks of emission if solvent will have an opportunity to take a place in the program.

Will Reduce Duties.

Gen. Obregon stated that a new law will provide for duties on merchandise brought in quantities into Mexico, payable when the goods are taken from the custom house.

It will establish deposits of merchandise in the principal cities of the republic so that a local merchant will be able to select goods to be delivered at once. Gen. Obregon said that at the present time merchants were compelled to take trips to the states to select goods, but with this law effective wholesalers would keep stocks for immediate release. The duties will be lowered.

Article 123 of the constitution, on labor, will be considered by congress. Meanwhile the government will favor the open shop except in certain contingencies.

Spring Styles for Men to Be Announced Today

The entire masculine world is breathlessly awaiting the words, so to speak, that will be uttered today by L. C. Tyler of Columbus, O. Tyler is chairman of the style committee of the Merchants Tailor Designers' association, which will close its convention at the Congress hotel tonight. At 10 o'clock this morning he will announce the spring and summer styles in men's wear for 1921. Walter C. Foster of Chicago was elected president of the association for the ensuing year.

EDDIE MORRIS ARRAIGNED FOR MULLEN MURDER

Eddie Morris, alleged slayer of Policeman John Mullen, was carried into court in an armchair yesterday for arraignment before Chief Justice Charles A. McDonald.

Morris, pale and with one arm in a sling, sat motionless throughout the ten minutes' ordeal. His attorney, John A. Lonergan, entered a plea of not guilty.

There was no trial date set. "Morris is growing weaker instead of better," Attorney Lonergan told Judge McDonald. "It would be useless to set a date for trial at this time."

John McEvilly, alias Crosby, also entered a plea of not guilty. A motion for a separate trial for McEvilly was entered by Attorney Charles Erbstein.

It was taken under advisement.

TO START ART CLASSES. Harold T. Brown of Hull house announced yesterday that public art classes will be opened on Monday at the Hull house studio under the direction of Herman Sachs. Drawing from models and general design will be taught in the classes.

The city of Chicago is another huge deficit this year, but the figure will be no one can afford to ignore it. The controller and the council indicate it will be $10,100,000, and this with requested salary increase more than $6,000,000.

Expenditures above $4,000,000. Now what will the city's expenditures be? They are $44,067,306. They are appropriations aggregated.

CITY MAY FACE
A NEW DEFICIT
OF $10,100,000

Official Figures Show the Trend of Finance.

BY OSCAR E. HEWITT.

The city of Chicago is headed toward another huge deficit this year. What will be no one can accurately forecast now, but the figures of the city controller and the council finance committee indicate it will be upward of $10,100,000, and this without granting requested salary increases totaling more than $5,000,000.

This sum is over and above the bond issue of $5,000,000, which the council voted Wednesday to submit to the voters for approval and which is to pay last year's deficit and other floating indebtedness. The $5,000,000 bond issue relates to the year 1920; the prospective $10,100,000 deficit refers exclusively to the year 1921.

Estimated Revenue $30,882,637.

The "estimated current revenue during 1921" for the corporate fund is given by the city controller as $30,882,637. This figure is shown in the controller's annual estimates submitted to the city council on Wednesday and given by it to its finance committee. From this figure the controller subtracts the "estimated deficit Dec. 31, 1920," totaling $5,882,377, giving the net corporate revenue available for 1921 as $25,000,260.

If the voters are persuaded to approve the $5,000,000 bond issue for current expenses, the city will have $33,250,260 for corporate expenses this year. If the voters do not approve the $5,000,000 bond issue, of course the city will have only the $25,000,260.

The foregoing tells the revenue side of the story.

Expenses Above $44,000,000.

Now what will the city spend? The department heads have asserted their needs total $44,000,000. They have requested appropriations for the following:

The council finance committee, which has been working on the estimates for several weeks, has a total estimate to date of $44,452,785. It will be noticed that this is $450,000 above the total requested by the department. Chairman Richter explained yesterday that the difference is due to underestimating some items and to payments and public debts and that the committee has increased reasonable amounts for these purposes in its estimates.

If the council passes a budget of $44,452,785 and the city administration accordingly, there will be a deficit. If the $5,000,000 bond issue is approved that deficit—on the face of the figures—will be in the neighborhood of $11,400,000. But if the bond issue is not voted, the deficit will be $10,100,000 more at the end of the year.

How $10,100,000 Is Reached.

One member of the finance committee, however, said yesterday that it was contemplated by the city council that $1,300,000 in judgments should be paid out of the proposed $5,000,000 bond issue, while the deficit would be $10,100,000 more at the end of the year.

Aldermen have publicly announced there are various methods by which the legislature can give the city financial relief. But only two ways have been named. One is to increase the tax rate. The other is to "put teeth in the tax law" by requiring—under penalty—the filing of property schedules. No one has explained to date how the latter scheme will give more money to the city this year.

Three Offer to Give $200,000 to Help Y. M. C. A.

Three contributions, totaling $200,000, were pledged last night at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the Young Men's Christian association for the construction of a $400,000 building at the Hyde Park department. The contributions are conditional upon the association's raising the remainder of the money.

L. W. Messer, general secretary, announced that Mrs. G. F. Swift had contributed $150,000 towards the construction of the Hyde Park department.

A. W. Harris of the Harris Trust and Savings bank and John B. Lord, a Chicago merchant, each offered to contribute $25,000 on the same plan, bringing the total to $200,000.

Jonas, Blinded by Girl, to Be Paid $80,000

Julius Jonas, blinded for life when Pauline McGill shot him, was killed himself in her apartment last fall, will be paid $80,000—almost the face value of his insurance policies—by the casualty companies, it was learned yesterday.

That the insurance companies have agreed to settle that amount upon Jonas was revealed through the filing of a stipulation asking the dismissal of a recently filed by the former which that their policies be rescinded.

Little Girl Among Women and Children Rescued at South Side Fire.

Rescues of women and children from the suffocating smoke by firemen and police marked a spectacular fire, which partly destroyed a two-story brick building at 1400 West Fifty-fifth street yesterday. The building was occupied by the department store of L. Franks and numerous apartments.

The blaze started in the rear of the store and quickly spread to the apartments above, throwing off a dense black smoke. Women with children in their arms were carried from the windows by firemen and police from New City station.

Mrs. Albert Klinerberg and her 2-year-old daughter, Marjorie, were carried down a ladder by Policemen Louis Stachowski, who discovered the fire and turned in the alarm. Mrs. Catherine Henson and a neighbor's child, Clarence Shields, were carried out by firemen after the woman had fainted. Mrs. Lillie Flynn, 822 North California avenue, who was visiting friends in the building, also was carried down a ladder.

ALDERMEN ASKED TO CURB MOVIES TO SAVE YOUNG

Films Assailed as "Free Love" Teachers.

Advocates of a more drastic movie censorship told the council judiciary committee yesterday that before they are 10 years old the city's school children learn more evil from films than the public schools can ever eradicate.

"Half of our pictures show hasty marriages. Forbidden love is common. In twenty years free love will be rampant and Russia will be a piker compared to the United States," Attorney T. D. Hurley, chairman of the censorship commission, told the aldermen.

"From the movies children of 12 years have learned more of birth, conception, and marriage than you and I knew when we were 20. Respect for authority is minimized. Crime is glorified and marriage is scoffed at and lampooned."

Ordinance Is Drawn.

The censorship commission was appointed in 1918 and the ordinance which it recommends was drawn by Mr. Hurley, representing the Holy Name society; the Rev. W. S. Fleming, representing the Protestant churches, and Henry Solomon, representing the women's clubs. It was approved by the other members, who include Miss Harriett Vittum, Anthony Matre, Mrs. Guy Blanchard, the Rev. James B. Haslam, and the Rev. Frederic Siedenbarg of Loyola university.

The proposed ordinance would create a department of censorship, removing the work from the jurisdiction of the police department. There would be three chief censors at $5,000 a year. Two would be men and one a woman.

Hear Producers Later.

Art clashed with morals many times during the two-hour session in the council chamber. Only the advocates of more free use of the scissors were heard yesterday. The producers and exhibitors will be heard Feb. 3.

Most of the clashes were caused by the proposal that the words "sacriligious, salacious, and unparliamentary" be added to the words "immoral and obscene or tending to disturb the public peace" in the section which catalogues pictures for which no permits shall be issued. The proposed ordinance would also subject posters and movie advertising to censorship.

It would also repeal the "pink permit" clause which provides that certain pictures shown to "adults only."

"The pink permit has been used for a drawing card for certain low theaters," said Mr. Hurley. "It has paid only in the loop for, as a rule, a father will not go where he cannot take his child."

Mr. Hurley asserted that in a recent test of the "power of the movie" a group of school children were shown a slide of the masterpiece, "The Last Supper." None recognized it. Then came a picture of George Washington. A few recognized him. None knew who Marshall or Jefferson was. But when Dug, Mary, and Charlie hit the screen there was a riot of approval.

CHERIN SLAYER'S ACCUSER SEEKS TO ESCAPE JAIL

Now that Thomas O'Connor, accused and identified murderer of Jimmie Cherin, has fled and forfeited bonds of $45,000, Louis Miller, who identified him as the killer, is trying to get out of jail on a writ of habeas corpus.

Attorneys John Prystalski and James C. O'Brien, representing Miller, who has been in custody, obtained the writ yesterday before Judge Hugo Pam. It is returnable this morning. Miller has confessed to driving the automobile in which he said O'Connor murdered Cherin.

O'Connor was pointed out in a crowded courtroom by Miller as the murderer. Miller later was kidnapped from his home, and the state, for lack of his testimony, had to nolle prosequi O'Connor's case. Miller later reappeared and renewed his identification.

Help Clear Murder Mystery

The mystery that has surrounded the murder of Leonardo Dimarco, has been cleared a little yesterday when information reached the police that may lead to the identification of one of the man's eight brothers-in-law as the slayer.

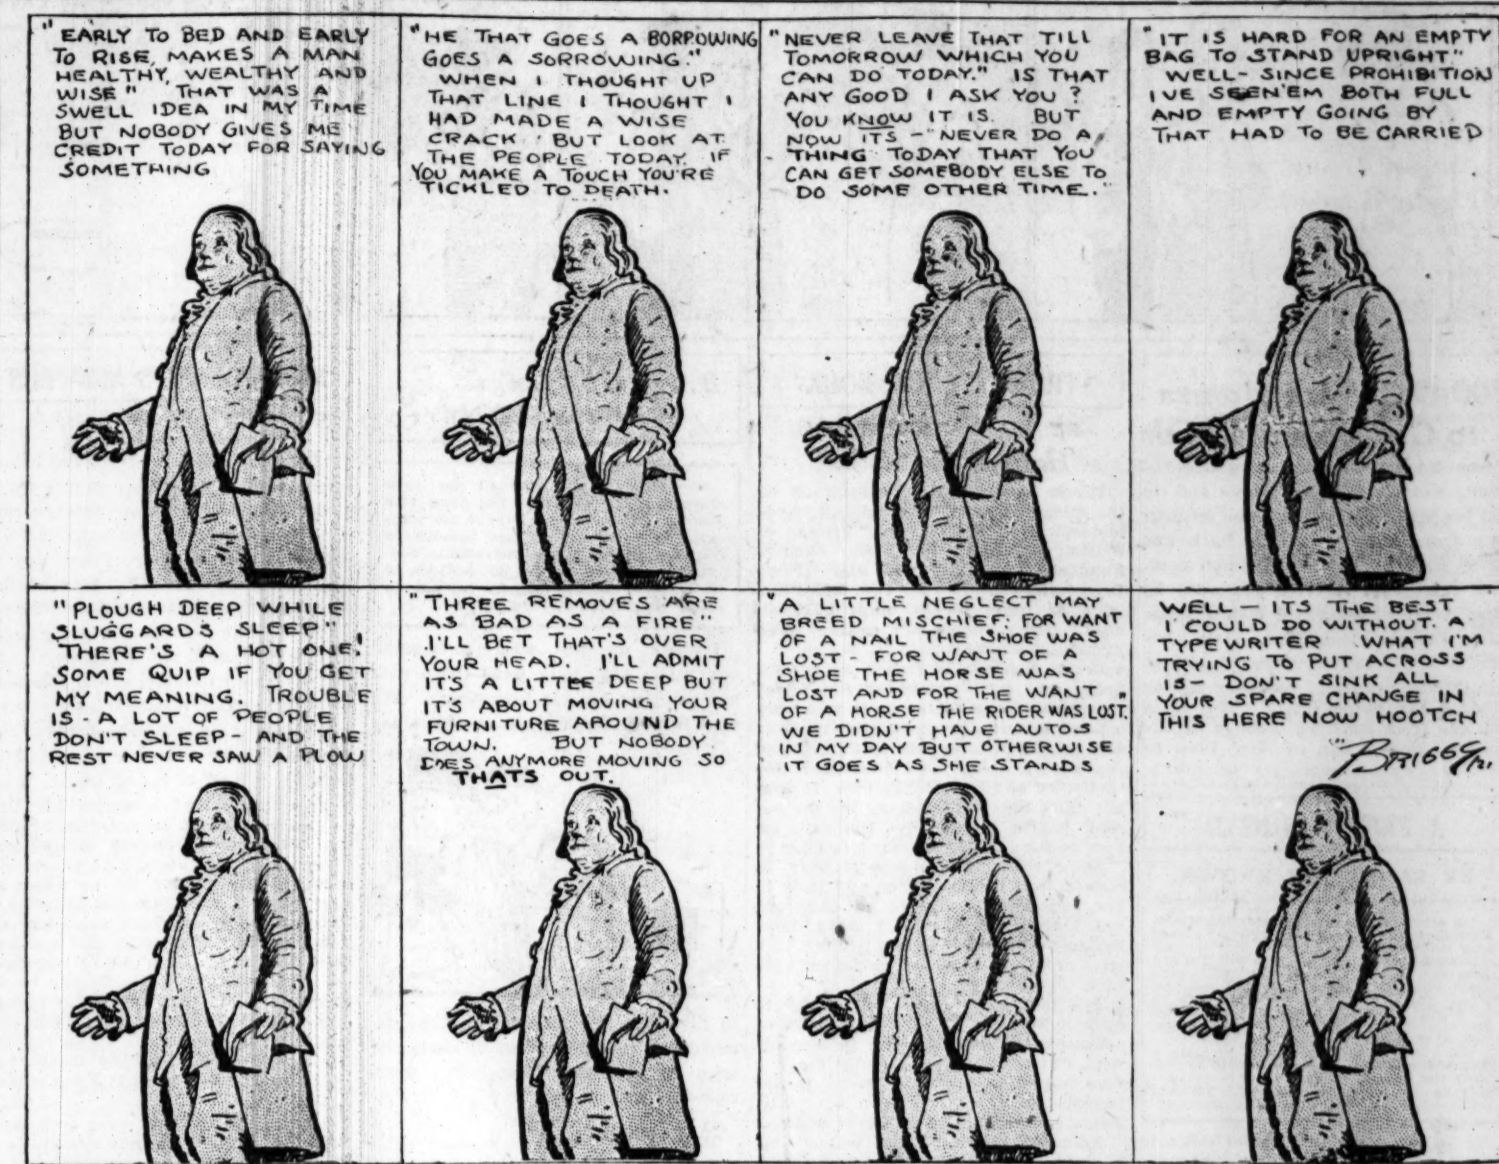

Dimarco remained unidentified for twenty-four hours after he was shot. No one knew where he lived nor who he was. A mysterious telegram, signed "Sendoro," called a brother of the slain man to the police station. The brother's identification revealed to the police that the murder victim was married and had left his wife and infant son in New York City when he came here to seek work some time ago.

Capt. Morgan Collins, in charge of the case, now believes a brother of the wife, believing Dimarco had deserted her, came to Chicago and killed him in revenge.

Every Day He Asks Five Persons, Picked at Random, a Question.

Today's Question.

Do you find it necessary to take particular precautions to protect your complexion against Chicago's smoke?

Where Asked.

Michigan avenue between Congress and Van Buren streets.

The Answers.

Miss Arvilla Morry, 351 Chicago street, Elgin, stenographer—Chicago's smoke soon ruins a good complexion. I leave Elgin in the morning with a clear skin, only to become fairly black while passing through the Union station. A good cream is essential and a bit of powder much to be desired.

Miss Gladys Moe, 3723 North Lawn avenue, secretary—I do not think the smoke of this city affects the complexions of girls. There are certain things that we use on our faces that do them a whole lot more harm.

Miss Marie Sweet Findlay, Lake Forest, singer—When I come back from Chicago my face is invariably covered with soot. A little cold cream and soap and water are all I use to get it clean. I think Chicago is very hard on any one's complexion and it takes a lot of work to keep your skin looking clear.

Miss Helen Mendenhall, 1588 Oak avenue, Evanston, student—The smoke and soot are terribly hard on the skin and beware of cinders! The air is full of them. Chicago's smoke is a disgrace to the city. As rich a city as Chicago could afford to correct this drawback.

Miss Florence Lucas, 5015 Sunnyside avenue, singer—Yes, it is necessary for a person to protect the complexion. If she did not do so the smoke of Chicago would play havoc with the skin. However, I would not live outside of Chicago.

CROWE RAIDS VICE SPOTS ON COUNTY'S EDGE

Grand Jury Is Told of Gambling.

Detectives participating in State's Attorney Crowe's campaign to rid Chicago of professional gambling houses swooped down on Burnham, West Hammond, Argo, and other vice spots on the fringe of Cook county last night.

Slot machines and other gambling paraphernalia were seized and those taken into custody as proprietors of the places were rushed to the Criminal court building. There they were questioned by Assistant State's Attorney Charles F. Wharton and served with subpoenas to appear before the grand jury this afternoon.

Raids in West Hammond.

Seven places were raided in West Hammond by a squad of detectives headed by Sgt. William L. Bush. They were the saloons of James Fitzgerald, 5 West State street; Karl Martovich, 3 West State street; Morris Snyder, 406 West State street; David Campbell, 606 East State street; Peter Esser, 330 West State street; Philip Howard, 106 West State street; and Andrew Molner, 100 West State street.

One slot machine was seized in each place with the exception of the Molner saloon, where three machines were confiscated. In each case the detectives played the machines before making arrests.

Raids in Burnham.

Two places run by a man who gave the name of Al Brown were raided in Burnham. The license of one of the places at 10 Goslin street, where one machine was seized, is in the name of Harry Delmont. Three large slot machines and one small one were found in the other place at 18 Goslin street. Brown said both places were owned by a man named Parker.

The state's attorney spent the afternoon yesterday in presenting the evidence obtained in Wednesday's raids to the grand jury, which is expected to return true bills against several proprietors of gaming resorts today.

Suit Questions Huge U. S. Booze Taxes, Penalties

The right of the government to collect taxes and penalties assessed against manufacturers of intoxicating beverages was attacked yesterday in federal court by Attorney David D. Stansbury. At least $5,000,000 is involved in the Chicago district. Attorney Stansbury's suit charges that section 35 of the Volstead act, which legalizes such collections, is unconstitutional because it assesses taxes on privileges revoked by the Volstead act.

Bus Passengers in Panic as Street Car Hits Them

Passengers in a Chicago Motor Bus company car were thrown into a panic last night when it was struck by a street car at Clarendon avenue and Sheridan road. The bus was shoved against a curb and the windows shattered, but no one was seriously injured.

HOLDUP VICTIMS IDENTIFY "MUTE" AS BRUTAL THIEF

Until yesterday afternoon the Sheriff's office police believed that cell No. 11 contained three victims of holdups testified to by his power of speech. But he continues mute.

His arrest occurred last Wednesday night. Detective Sergeant Thomas Mannix and Peter Tomchek saw a man lurking in the shadow of a doorway.

"Stick 'em up quick," ordered Mannix. (Tribune Photo.)

The man remained immovable, but the right pocket bulged. They leaped on him and seized his right arm. In his pocket was a .38 caliber revolver. A card and a notebook bore the name "Richard E. Shannon." He would not confirm nor deny that this is his name. He answered no questions.

The police say his description corresponds to that of a man who has committed more than twenty-five holdups in the last month.

Sixteen year old Antoni Mikolajczak of 2215 Southport avenue last night identified him as the man who stopped him last Monday and beat him severely because he had only an indelible pencil and 80 cents.

A well dressed young man, representing himself as "Lieut. H. C. Wilson of the Royal Flying Corps" and wearing the emblem of the American Legion, attempted to rob Mrs. M. A. Sinner yesterday in her home at 34 East Elm street, but was frightened away by the screams of a maid. The man came to the house in search of a room, according to Mrs. Sinner.

CHINESE FOUND SLAIN; FIFTH IN TWO MONTHS

Police See New Evidence of Tong War.

Scrawled on his face in an abandoned brown stone house at 608 Federal street, William Lee Tai, Chinese owner of the Oriental Inn at 4012 Lincoln avenue, was found murdered last night. He is the fifth Chinese to be mysteriously slain in the last two months.

The police are more than ever convinced that a sanguinary tong war has broken out in Chinatown.

The body of Tai was found by an aged watchman, Patrick Quinn of 606 Federal street. The building has been deserted for three months. Quinn, stumbling about in the darkened, cobwebbed interior, pushed open the door to a little room on the second floor, and his toe struck the body. Physicians said last night Tai had not been dead more than three hours. His head had been crushed in with some weapon which was not found.

In the pockets of his clothing $239 was found and two sealed packets of gum opium. An unopened letter was also found. It was addressed to Frank G. Joseph, P. O. Box 79, Muskegon, Mich.

In another pocket a gas bill bearing the name of William Tai, in care of Oriental Inn. Thus his identity was established. He was further identified by William Wong, owner of a grocery at 549 South Clark street.

Employees of the restaurant said Tai had been last seen by them Wednesday morning when he left the restaurant.

Clutched in the dead man's hand was a brown button—mute and only clue to the identity of the murderer.

The South Clark street police took charge of the case and took the employees of the restaurant to the station for questioning. They believe there is some connection between the Tai murder and that of Gong Tong, who was found dead in the basement of the Sam Lung grocery company at 431 South Clark street, a short time ago. In Lung's pocket was found a bank deposit book on a bank in Muskegon, Mich.

A week's drive to raise $100,000 to found a memorial professorship at Knox college, Galesburg, Ill., in honor of the late Judge Philip S. The Chicago drive will be a part of a country-wide campaign to raise an additional endowment of $750,000 for the school by next June for the purpose of increasing professors' salaries. Last week the student body at the college, numbering about 500, raised $50,000 in seventy hours.

Retiring Chief Wants Only "100 Per Cent" Men.

Achievements of the year 1920 and a forecast for the coming twelve months in the Chicago Athletic association are duly recorded and set forth in the annual report of the retiring president, Richard J. Collins, distributed just after the annual election of new officers.

Retiring President Collins leaves the office with satisfaction. "If I have given you satisfaction I am pleased; and if I did not I am happy in the thought that I did the very best I knew how." And the consensus of members is said to be unanimously: "He did!"

3,450 on Waiting List.

Mr. Collins says there are 3,450 applicants for membership on the waiting list and he adjures his fellow members to accept only those who are 100 per cent and beware of those who "with crowbars," etc., are trying "to bust in."

"I wish to admonish the newly elected president," says Mr. Collins' report, "that in his selection of a membership committee he cannot be too circumspect."

"We have a waiting list of 3,450 applications, and no excuse should be accepted why an undesirable should be admitted to membership. Any applicant, even he with a shady record, can get some one of our members to say a good word for him. Be careful of such influence."

Must Be 100 Per Cent Men.

"Let it be said, and truthfully so, that to be admitted to membership in the Chicago Athletic association a man must be 100 per cent."

Meet boldly any effort to join us of the quack doctor, the blue sky promoter, the fellow who settles for 50 cents on the dollar, and last but not least, the man who, for no other reason than his accumulation of wealth, discovers that his wife with help from him get a start is not good enough for him and wants to ditch her for some one else, or to make the club his haven.

"Watch these counterfeits who, by subterfuge or crowbars, will use every effort available to bust in. I talk from years of experience on the membership committee and I appreciate I will be criticized for such a frank statement."

Club Stands Acid Test.

"Now, in concluding my report as your president, let me say we have gone through the two years of acid test and adverse conditions, weathered the storm and surmounted every obstacle. The members have been most tolerant and complaints almost negligible and confined to a very few."

"The Chicago Athletic association by its traditions has made for itself a name which we are all justly proud of, and to have been its president is an unusual distinction, and will be my greatest asset, my dividends being the friendships of the best lot of good fellows in all the world."

The report says that during 1920 more than 500,000 meals were served in the club dining room.

MAD DOG SCARE SHUTS WILMETTE SCHOOLS TO PETS

Owing to the large number of attacks made upon residents of the north shore by vicious dogs recently, an order was issued yesterday in the Wilmette public schools forbidding the pupils to allow their pets to follow them to school.

Four persons were attacked and bitten by two dogs in Winnetka Wednesday night.

Todd Hyatt, 6 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Hyatt of 477 Elder lane, Winnetka, one of the victims, was brought to Chicago for Pasteur treatment yesterday. He was bitten by an airleide terrier. Later the Winnetka police shot a dog of that description belonging to Mrs. Waldo Putnam of Winnetka. Its head was brought to Chicago and experts pronounced it to have been suffering from rabies. Mrs. Putnam, however, denied her dog had bitten the boy.

Shortly after the Hyatt boy had been injured, a stray dog attacked three persons in the Elm street station of the North Shore electric line in Winnetka. The animal first leaped at M. J. Swatek Jr., 2 1/2 year old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Swatek of 4650 Clarendon avenue. Mrs. Swatek attempted to drive the animal away and was bitten on the hand. Her cries brought Chief of Police W. M. Peterson running into the station and he, too, was bitten.

You may quite possibly enjoy this picture because you like Eva Novak or because Jack Perrin and Mr. Shumway appeal to you. I am more inclined, however, to think that you will find it overdrawn and stupid, with markish subtitles that make you want to come up for air.

The story takes an unhappy young wife with a drinking husband whom she has married for money only, puts them on a yacht, and shipwrecks them. The wife lands on an island with the only man she really loves. He is an aviator. On the island are moonshiners, who almost do for the pair. A miraculous escape is effected, however, and the twin return to civilization.

Here they are unexpectedly confronted by the husband, an invalid now, attended by a former musical comedy lady who has hopes that her watchful waiting will be rewarded in time by a fat legacy.

O, well, the husband, who realizes his life is the only woman in the world, obligingly defers doctor's mandates and goes into the heretofore, leaving his widow his estate. And after that—you know the rest of it.

Miss Novak, with her round face, wistful eyes, and toothy smile, is a pleasant little screen presence. The cast supporting her is pretty good. Photography's fine in spots. Story is awful.

TRIBUNE COOK BOOK

BY JANE EDDINGTON.
Haddock and Haddie.

Fresh haddock are haddock or on the French menu "eglefin," but cured haddock are "haddie" or "Pinner" or "Pinder haddock" or, going back a hundred years, you will find "Pinder haddock" just as you find Pinder-horn on quite recent maps of Scotland. Some people are calling fresh haddock "haddie."

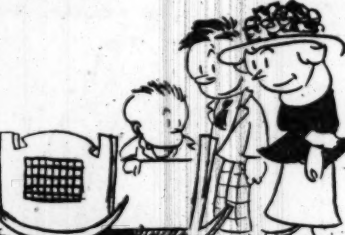

Fresh haddock is frozen as caught today and well preserved for transportation, while formerly it was considered one of the most perishable of fish though so acceptable of flavor, so the Scotch salted and smoked it for their own and the world's use. It does not take the salt well, so we do not soak haddock to take out the salt, before broiling it, but merely to soften it. After washing the fish it may be soaked first in cold water and then in hot, but epicures like to put it into a hot deep plate on a hot stove, pour boiling water on it, cover it close, and let it stand for ten to fifteen minutes.

The intelligent eater will prefer to cook it farther. It may be broiled or creamed. In broiling, dot generously with butter, and cook gently until a nice brown. Sometimes more butter is added in serving it on a hot plate, but hot cream is highly worth while. Economic circular No. 47, issued Aug. 18, 1920, by the bureau of fisheries, the department of commerce, is worth sending for. It contains thirty-one recipes for cooking fresh haddock and haddie and salt haddock.

I visited an aunt, who had a small boy, and a year later went there with my husband on our honeymoon. We were both taken in to see the little boy.

In his crib. He was asked if he remembered me. He looked up shyly and said: "I remember Rita, but I don't know the man of her."

Edward was told to remain after school and sit quietly for ten minutes and think. After sitting quietly for five minutes he said: "Please, may I go home now? It hurts my head to think."

DORIS BLAKE'S ANSWERS

Best to Speak.

"Dear Miss Blake: You have helped so many—won't you help me? I am 18 years old. For the last two years I have been keeping company with a young man of 21, whom I love dearly. We went together until May of this year, and then separated for no reason at all—he was to blame. I never heard or saw him until the other night. In all that time I thought of him constantly—I couldn't drive him from my mind. I met him at a dance last week, and he seemed so lonesome. He didn't keep his eye off of me all night. I am a proud girl, and remembering how he treated me last May, I didn't notice him all night—I danced around and flirted with all the fellows there, and was quite popular. To outward appearances, I was gay and indifferent, but really I could have cried out my love for him and gone to him with outstretched arms. He didn't approach me all evening, but he did say to my chum's friend: 'I'm scared to talk to her—she treats me so cold.' Did I do right? Will it be all right for my chum and her friend to invite him over, making believe that I don't know a thing about it? MARIE."

I guess your little ruse will work all right. But how much simpler it would have been to speak when you met. Is it not silly to perpetuate a grievance when one nice broad smile would have brought the sun out for both of you?

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Such Large Cows.

As I was riding on the train I noticed some extra large cows in a pasture, and turning to my husband, I exclaimed: "Did you ever see such cows?" Everyone in that part of the car began laughing and I took a second look only to discover that they were wooden advertisements for a milk company.

BEAUTY ANSWERS

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

WORRIED: THAT'S THE TRAGEDY of succumbing to the temptation to bleach or dye the hair. Once done, you are in for a lifetime of work re-bleaching and re-dyeing it, or else longing for the original shade. It takes just about two years to recover it. The biscuit color hair does not seem so bad on a young face, but mount it on a face that has lost its bloom and a hard, haggard effect is what you get. So, instead of hieing yourself to the hair dresser's just let time and patience regulate you in getting back the nice soft brown of other days.

FASHION'S BLUE BOOK

Trade Mark Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

BY CORINNE LOWE.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—One cannot depend upon the time tables for any knowledge of the trains of this year. They are apt to start any place, and they end with equal spontaneity. For the most formal evening wear many great designers both here and abroad have placed their stamp of approval upon the stately train which flows from the shoulders.

Others develop side trains from panels of the material. And the train is just as likely to be the prolongation of the gauzy scarf which winds about the throat as it is to be the terminus of a sash or girdle.

This charming evening frock of flame colored satin set off with silver lace and silver tassels runs two side trains direct from the skirt itself. Aside from this the arrangement of the girdle is extremely interesting.

GRAIN SELLING ON BULGES PUTS DENT IN PRICES

BY CHARLES D. MICHAELS.

Bulges in grains brought out liberal selling and checked buying, making bulges of short duration. There was poor support part of the day, and the impression prevailed the leading long were getting out through commission houses. News was scarce and cut little figure.

At the finish sales were at nearly the inside prices, with net losses of 3/4c on wheat, 1/2c on corn and oats, 1/4c on rye, and 1/2c off on barley. The feeling was distrustful.

May wheat was under the most pressure and led the decline, breaking to $1.40, or 1/2c under the close of the previous day, and ending within 3/4c of the lowest. A lot of selling was attributed to eastern as well as the local interests, and the buying was mainly by commission houses taking profits on previous sales.

Italy Buys Cash Wheat. Export demand, while liberal, did not appear as keen, but 500,000 bu were sold in all positions, mostly at the gulf and largely to Holland and Italy. At the same time, a large quantity of country offerings were light and one large exporter bought in Kansas City rather than in the interior.

Traders awaited the decision on the Argentine export tax which keeps foreigners from buying there. Argentina has shipped only 144,000 bu so far this season, against 15,500 bu last year. Rains are predicted there and more rain was reported in Australia.

Short Covering in Corn. Corn had its support from a local operator who was short and absorbed the bulk of the local selling and hedging. Prices at the lowest were down to 65c, or 1/2c over the inside of the previous day's low, while the top was 65c, with the close 65c, showing the narrowness of the range. On the bulge part of the corn bought on the break came out. Exporters took 300,000 bu here and a larger quantity at outside markets. Country offerings were lighter. It was claimed American corn in Liverpool was 13c cheaper than Argentine based on Wednesday's close.

Oats sold a shade lower than yesterday, with more liquidation on and support mainly from shorts. Exporters bought rye at outside points and removed hedges here. Selling pressure was ample and prices declined. Export bids were here for barley, with a fair business on.

Provisions Decline Again. Short ribs were the most active and were sold by local packers and bought by commission houses. Prices declined and closed at the lowest, with pork 35c 1/2c, lard 17c 1/2c, and short ribs 20c lower. The live hogs were 60c, and pork 20c, and lard 17c 1/2c. Cash trade was mainly in hams. Prices follow:

CASH GRAIN NEWS

While export demand for wheat was dull early, the break in futures resulted later in sales of 800,000 bu hard winter wheat, the bulk of which came to Italy and Switzerland. Premiums at the gulf were 10c. Sales of corn were 300,000 bu, and 50,000 bu of No. 2 southern wheat at 24c over March 1. Some barley was sold at 88c track New York for 48 lb grain and there was a further demand at the same price.

Domestic shipping sales of cash grain were 21,000 bu wheat, 70,000 bu corn, and 60,000 bu oats. Deliveries on January contracts were 10,000 bu corn.

Premiums on spot wheat at Chicago showed little change, with No. 1 red quoted at 108 1/2c over March. No. 1 hard at 108 1/2c over, and No. 1 northern at 108 1/2c over March. Receipts 15 cars. Kansas City was 10c higher at 88c track New York for 48 lb grain and there was a further demand at the same price.

At the finish sales were at nearly the inside prices, with net losses of 3/4c on wheat, 1/2c on corn and oats, 1/4c on rye, and 1/2c off on barley. The feeling was distrustful.

May wheat was under the most pressure and led the decline, breaking to $1.40, or 1/2c under the close of the previous day, and ending within 3/4c of the lowest. A lot of selling was attributed to eastern as well as the local interests, and the buying was mainly by commission houses taking profits on previous sales.

Italy Buys Cash Wheat. Export demand, while liberal, did not appear as keen, but 500,000 bu were sold in all positions, mostly at the gulf and largely to Holland and Italy. At the same time, a large quantity of country offerings were light and one large exporter bought in Kansas City rather than in the interior.

Traders awaited the decision on the Argentine export tax which keeps foreigners from buying there. Argentina has shipped only 144,000 bu so far this season, against 15,500 bu last year. Rains are predicted there and more rain was reported in Australia.

Short Covering in Corn. Corn had its support from a local operator who was short and absorbed the bulk of the local selling and hedging. Prices at the lowest were down to 65c, or 1/2c over the inside of the previous day's low, while the top was 65c, with the close 65c, showing the narrowness of the range. On the bulge part of the corn bought on the break came out. Exporters took 300,000 bu here and a larger quantity at outside markets. Country offerings were lighter. It was claimed American corn in Liverpool was 13c cheaper than Argentine based on Wednesday's close.

Oats sold a shade lower than yesterday, with more liquidation on and support mainly from shorts. Exporters bought rye at outside points and removed hedges here. Selling pressure was ample and prices declined. Export bids were here for barley, with a fair business on.

Provisions Decline Again. Short ribs were the most active and were sold by local packers and bought by commission houses. Prices declined and closed at the lowest, with pork 35c 1/2c, lard 17c 1/2c, and short ribs 20c lower. The live hogs were 60c, and pork 20c, and lard 17c 1/2c. Cash trade was mainly in hams. Prices follow:

WORLD'S GRAIN MARKET NEWS

Trade sentiment in grains remains against the constructive side regardless of export bulge of wheat and fair purchases of corn. Constant selling on hard spots creates the impression there is enough grain to supply all demands for the present and immediate future. Absence of outside buying support and selling attributed to local and eastern sources make it hard to sustain bulge despite liberal sales of wheat for export.

Technically the grain markets last night were said to be overvalued, especially on corn, prices for which have been on the down grade for a week, and 4c rally was said to be due. The buying support in corn yesterday was local operator covering, a road part of which was put out again on the rally.

Lower prices and soft country roads are said to be
